House Group Rejects Move To Delay Training Hearing

Truman Draft Plan Wins First Fight; Congress Studies Atomic Energy Problem.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 13—The house military committee today rejected by a 15 to 12 vote a move to defer consideration of universal military training legislation until next year.

It agreed to resume hearings Thursday on the plan requested Oct 22 by President Truman The witness that day will be General of the Army Dwight D Eisenhower.

The vote occurred on a motion by Rep Short (R-Mo) to defer further hearings until January

The committee voted in closed session Chairman May (D-Ky) announced the result.

Meanwhile the ominous problem of atomic energy hung over the Capitol like a cloud.

The senate atomic energy committee, headed by Brien McMahon of Connecticut, met to plan its history-making work

Sentiment Is Strong

Sentiment was strong among members of the house military committee to reconsider the atomic energy bill which the committee has recommended This bill would set up a commission of nine non-salaried citizens to boss U S atomic development. The house group may vote on whether to start all over again

It was increasingly clear that a smooth and speedy passage was not to be expected for any atomic energy law

Another congressional search for facts, the Pearl Harbor investigation moved rapidly toward the center of the stage. Public hearings will begin day after tomorrow

But two senators had pessimistic predictions

Senator Carl Hatch (D-NM) said he believes the inquiry will end with a split report—Democrats coming up with one verdict and Republicans with another Hatch said "I'm afraid no good can come out of this investigation It is so thoroughly permeated with politics "

Senator Raymond Willis (R-Ind) said there is no chance of a unanimous report unless the six Democrats on the Pearl Harbor committee permit the four Repub-

Body of Paul James Still in Gravel Pit.

Today there were still no results in the search for the body of Paul Eugene James, 23, of 779 Fillmore street, who drowned Saturday morning in the gravel pit west of the airport

The professional diver from Toledo who helped look for James body Sunday night and yesterday has returned to Toledo

For a time Monday night the body was thought to have been seen from the surface and dynamite was used in an attempt to bring it up The attempt failed

The search still goes on with many of the workers taking little time out for rest or food Among the men who have worked steadily since the accident occurred are Sheriff Roy Retterer, County Commissioner Carl Lehner, Jack Foreman of 479 North State street and Frank Rease of 276 Cass avenue Three boats are in operation, owned by Mr. Foreman, Albert Ward of Mary street and Lige Robinson of Waterloo street. Motors are owned by Mr Rease, Mr. Ward and the Harold Bros garage The city fire department had a boat in use Saturday but it has been withdrawn from the search.

The accident occurred while James attempted to swim after a duck which had fallen in the pit and was seized by a cramp.

MAN IS FOUND DEAD UNDER FARM TRACTOR

Elliott Thomas Killed in Accident on Road South of Marion.

Elliott Thomas 56 of near Prospect was killed this morning on the Bethlehem road one-half mile east of route 4, four miles south of Marion, in an accident involving a farm tractor Time of the accident was believed to be about 7 a m.

Clifford Almendinger of Prospect, a school bus driver, discovered the body lying under the tractor at 8 15 a m There were no eyewitnesses to the accident.

Possible Cause

The state highway patrol surmised that Thomas had either fallen asleep or suffered a stroke while driving the tractor It had gone off the road and up the embankment on the right Thomas either jumped or fell from the seat and was crushed beneath the tractor as it rolled back into the ditch

He was returning to his home from Prospect where the tractor had been left for repairs when the accident occurred

Resident 40 Years

Mr Thomas was born June 8 1889 near Blacksville, W Va A resident of the Prospect community about 40 years, he came there from West Virginia

Surviving are his widow, a son Merle Thomas of Kent, O, two grandchildren, a sister, Mrs Ruth Freeman of Buford O, and four halfbrothers, Ross, Carl and Willis Thomas, all of near Prospect and Lt Dale W Thomas who is stationed in Hawaii

The body was taken to the Gehm funeral home in Prospect Funeral arrangements were not complete at noon today

STEPS TAKEN TOWARD SCHOOL ISSUE DECISION

Course of Action To Be Determined At Meeting.

A meeting of the steering committee of the Civic Planning group, leaders in the movement for Marion's post-war Jobs and Progress program, which included the school bond issue, met last night with a number of other persons prominent in civic affairs to discuss what course of action to pursue regarding the issue which was defeated by six votes in the election of last Tuesday

Consideration was given to the reaction and opinions of citizens during the last week and this will determine the course which will be pursued a spokesman of the group said today Definite plans will be made at a meeting of the executive group to be held Wednesday night at Hotel Harding and at this time it will be decided whether a recount will be asked or steps taken to call a new election

LABOR DISPUTE MARS PARLEY

CIO Leaders Charge Lewis Back with AFL as Conference Resumes.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 13 — The labor-management conference reassembled after its Armistice day recess today amid fresh signs of friction on labor's side of the table

A CIO-Auto Workers contention that John L. Lewis secretly had taken his United Mine Workers back into the American Federation of Labor led to the latest brush

The contention—denied by Lewis and the AFL—was voiced by Richard T Frankensteen vice president of the CIO-Auto Workers union who told a news conference such a reaffiliation would give the AFL another vote in the conference

Associates of Lewis denied the Frankensteen report and AFL President William Green told newsmen it was "bunk" CIO President Philip Murray said he knew nothing about it

Lewis and the AFL teamed up to get the mine workers' chief a seat on the conference's powerful executive committee, and they were jointly critical of a resolution by Murray seeking to have the conference add the wage issue to its work program

The CIO-Auto Workers' executive board concluded its sessions until January 8, after appointing Frankensteen, defeated for mayor of Detroit in last week's election, to head a drive for a 30 per cent wage increase, or its equivalent, in the aircraft industry.

Text of Plan Not Decided; Hint at Fuss

Report Truman Irked at Play Given Attlee at Conference.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 13 The Truman-Attlee conference was reported today to have reached agreement on steps toward international control of the atomic bomb An announcement is possible by the week end

This information was obtained from diplomatic officials who declined identification They reported President Truman and Prime Ministers Attlee and Mackenzie King have been in substantial agreement since Sunday and the task at the moment is to work out wording for a communique on which all can agree

The conference may be wound up Thursday and the communique issued Friday

One Sore Spot

The only fly in the ointment from the point of view of American, and possibly Canadian officials, is the amount of information emanating from British sources here as to the preeminent role played by Attlee in the talks.

One plan for putting atomic bomb controls under the United Nations security council, pooling scientific information through the same agency and generally strengthening the U N through closer cooperation of the United States, Britain and Russia has come to be known as the Attlee plan

The White House gave evidence Mr. Truman was irked by the situation The White House clammed up and wouldn't give out any information at all

William D Hassett, presidential secretary, was asked whether he would say British officials who had talked had broken faith

"Oh," he replied, "I can't comment on that"

Maintain Secrecy

American officials maintained secrecy about progress of the conference on atomic problems There were indications from British authorities, however, that a communique reporting some sort of agreement would be issued Thursday or Friday

This conference between Attlee President Truman and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, thus far has developed the appearance of only one notable conflict—over whether to outlaw the atomic bomb as President Truman has suggested

The British approach has been to propose placing the bomb under the United Nations security council and to create along with that a pool for scientific information including the basic science of atomic energy

One point reportedly stressed by Attlee is that whatever actions are taken here must serve to reassure Russia that the western Allies de-

PREMIER SAYS GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY NEEDED

Steers Clear of A-Bomb, Explains Labor Party Stand on England's Troubles.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 13 —Prime Minister Clement Attlee told congress today that the foundations of peace must be "world prosperity and good neighborliness" There is "no reason," he said for economic rivalry between Great Britain and the United States

Speaking in the house of representatives to senators and congressmen who must approve any U. S. financial aid for Britain, Attlee frankly sought to remove what he called "some apprehensions" about his Labor party's program.

In his 3,000-word address, the British leader mentioned only briefly the prime purpose of his visit to this country—to discuss with President Truman the eventual disposition of the secrets of atomic bomb production He gave no indication of the course the conferences are taking

Attlee likened his country to a man in Britain returning from the war to find "his home blitzed and his business ruined."

"We went all out to win the war and now have to start afresh," he said "Like him, we are facing the future with courage and a determination to win through"

Sees Good Future

Attlee said he looked forward to an era of increasing cooperation and friendship between the U S and Britain That friendship, he said, should not be 'exclusive," but rather "a contribution to the knitting together with all peoples through the United Nations organization in the bonds of peace"

Although Attlee is known to have conferred with Lord Keynes on the progress of negotiations for a United States loan to Britain, he made no direct reference to British requests for financial aid

The prime minister said he believed "some people over here" imagine the British Labor party was "out to destroy freedom, freedom of the individual, freedom of speech, freedom of religion and freedom of the press"

"They are wrong" he asserted, adding the Labor party was "in the tradition of all British freedom-loving movements and

Hunters Face Shell Shortage As Opening of Season Nears

The ghosts of last still prevented the opening Friday of the first peacetime hunting season in four years The supply of shells is low According to dealers, it is as low as it ever was during the war.

Local dealers report that they had to stop accepting reservations for ducks Friday as long as a week ago All will be full over the coming weekend

Strangely enough the shortage of shells has caused a scarcity of pheasants O H Nemeyer, state game protector, says that the recent shell shortage has interfered with state fight against vermin and predatory animals and as the result pheasants are scarce all over the state. Rabbits he reports, are holding their own."

Contrary to the general conception, hunting season does not open until 11 a m Friday, Mr Nemeyer stated After Friday, hunting hours are from 7:30 a. m. to 5 30 p m. He cautioned trappers not to set their traps until 6 p m. Friday, and warned all hunters not to hunt without permission of the owners of the land.

be hard to please—insist on an Eagle Certified Insulation Job!

Quickly, Economically Installed

—no building alterations needed during installation

Eagle Insulation is blown into the attic floor with special pneumatic equipment The job is done by specially trained workmen There is no muss or fuss inside your home.

In hollow walls (wood, brick or stone veneer, or stucco), Eagle Insulation is quickly blown into place You get benefit of a thick lining of insulation that is as efficient in shutting out summer heat and sealing in furnace warmth as a concrete wall 12-feet thick.

Lastingly effective because it is made of MINERAL WOOL

This wool is fused from carefully selected minerals—is filled with millions of tiny dead air cells which act as a barrier to the passage of heat and cold. Eagle Insulation is chemically and physically stable—retains its full comfort-bringing efficiency from year to year—pays for itself in fuel savings.

. . . because it is WATER REPELLENT

Eagle Insulation will retain its efficiency and remain a non-conductor of electricity. It will not "break down" in the presence of moisture not settle in walls.

. . . because it is FIREPROOF

In walls and roof, Eagle Insulation forms a fire-retarding barrier Many home-owners have had fire losses materially reduced simply because they had installed Eagle Insulation.

. . . because it is LIGHTWEIGHT

Eagle Insulation does not pack down in walls leaving uninsulated areas at the top through which heat and cold may pass freely. Tests show that Eagle Insulation is so remarkably lightweight that it does not settle—goes on giving full wall-high protection indefinitely.

Eagle insulation is made by the Eagle-Picher Lead Company General Offices, Cincinnati, Ohio

Nights of Torture

...men often walked the ...nd night until the ab... ...r, after which they ...ded some relief.

... the Japs listened to ...stant pleas and permit... ... to hire a local dentist, ... proficient mainly in ...eeth. The Japs would not allow him any materials with which to fill cavities.

To keep out temperatures that dropped as low as 35 degrees below zero the prisoners pasted strips of paper over their loose windows and stayed close to their stoves, reading and re-reading their books. Enlisted men were beaten now and then for trivial infractions of the rules, but the beatings were not widespread.

The officers formed their old musical organization again and were permitted to move from one place to another in the camp area putting on their shows. When they ran out of tunes, new ones and lyrics were composed by Cols Gotgon Sage, once commander of one of my anti-aircraft regiments and a survivor of Camp O'Donnell, and Ted Lilly, another talented musician who made life at Sheng Tai Tun more bearable.

Dig in Hard-Frozen Ground

The first real trouble with the Jap captors that winter came when the men were ordered to dig foxholes in ground which was frozen as solid as a battleship's armor. But the Japs finally had their way, for they controlled the food which the new flesh of our men so mightily craved.

However, in the late winter when the Japs insisted that the officers begin working on the farm our men rejected the demand as vehemently as they had down at Shirakawa. They told the Japs of their bitter experiences at that place, and refused to listen to their new Jap captors when the latter promised them that they would receive such food as they raised. As a result, lists were made of the officers who refused to work and their food was cut immediately.

But our men had one great comfort at Sheng Tai Tun. They had devised means of getting news of the outside world. An enlisted man got the program under way. He became friendly with a Jap sentry who could speak a little English and made a bargain whereby he would give the sentry his wrist watch in exchange for three Jap newspapers. He knew that Cols Hoffman and Wood were expert translators.

Dangerous News Gathering

Those newspapers were perhaps among the most expensive in the history of publishing. The sentry had to pay a price for them from the camp commander's office and they had to be returned to the commander's desk at a certain time each night. All concerned took the risk, and expense—a high tribute to the value of a newspaper, even a Jap paper.

The Jap sentry who stole the papers sent word to our men that they must never discuss news within earshot of any other Jap for if suspicion fell upon him the Americans would most surely be severely punished and he himself would be executed.

The papers continued to be delivered to our men under cover of darkness, and their wristwatches and later their fountain pens and automatic pencils disappeared one by one. They learned with mounting excitement that the war in Europe was going well, and that Japan proper was being bombed by B-29s. They could not imagine what a B-29 looked like, but the bombing was enough. They learned, too, from these papers of MacArthur's landings in the Philippines and later of the death of President Roosevelt, and they spread these tremendous words from mouth to mouth.

Sent To Mukden

On May 20, 1945, the Jap commander of the camp angrily told them that since they refused to work he was sending them to Mukden, where they would find stern treatment.

They were shipped to a new prison camp which the Japs had erected near Mukden as a permanent home for Allied captives. Apparently it was built on the presumption that Japan not only would win the war but would keep many prisoners at work for years to come. For the men were told when they reported that if they obeyed all rules, "in the next ten or twenty years to come" their relatives from America would be permitted to visit them. Still, they refused to work.

The new camp lay close to a large factory, designed to turn out machine tools. More than a thousand American soldiers and sailors with mechanical training had been sent there and put to work in the summer of 1942, and 200 died of privation during their first winter.

Chances To Even Up

In time the men saw here a host of opportunities to square the score with their Jap masters by sabotage and by stealing just about everything they could lift.

In one case a crew of American enlisted men, with the help of some British and Dutch, were set to work digging pits and pouring cement for the foundations of 89 new and expensive lathes. When the pits were dug they hooked a large lathe to an electric hoist, dropped the lathe into the hole and then neatly covered it with cement before the Jap overseer could make his rounds. They set up the 89 lathes, but the Jap discovered that 88 of them would not work. Vital parts of the machines had been removed by the Allied enlisted men and buried in the cement which covered the buried lathe.

Tokyo sent a war production specialist to the factory and for a time it appeared that things would go very hard for a U. S. Navy technician named Savoie, foreman of the crew concerned. But Savoie blandly mis-answered all questions flung at him.

Work Well Done

"This is the worst piece of sabotage I have ever seen in Japan!" the expert shouted as he stomped off. It was a tribute to Savoie and his brave men.

Our soldiers at the factory, taking everything that was not riveted securely, stole electric motors, expensive parts and metals. When Jap guards were not looking they would toss this materiel over the factory wall at a prearranged spot; the stuff would be picked up by a waiting Chinese, then taken to the Mukden Black market and sold. Our men and the Chinese who worked with them split the profits 50-50, and with this money our men purchased tobacco, occasionally some food, and enough clothing to keep from freezing to death.

The Japs made the grave mistake one day of ordering a group of our soldiers to unload a carload of sausage and dried meat for the factory commissary, and then assigned too few guards to supervise the unloading. Our boys must have got away with a good half of that carload, right then and there stuffing the sausage in pockets, shirts and down their pant's legs. Later one of the boys picked the lock of the warehouse and the Japs lost much of what they had been able to save in the first place. The meat had to be hidden and furtively eaten at the factory, and the boys ate it until it ran out their ears.

Searchers Thwarted

The Japs began searching the enlisted men upon their return each evening to the prison camp, and for a time it appeared that the holiday was over. They had to come through the only entrance to the camp because an eight-foot wall, with electric wire on its top, precluded any other means of getting back in.

But one clever soldier devised a false bottom for the large food bucket's which were carted from the camp to the factory each morning and returned empty each night. Traffic in small stores such as tobacco and small-packaged food picked up briskly—to the joy and gratitude of our officers who, because they refused to work in the factory, were being punished by the usual starvation method.

The officers began buying anything edible or smokable brought to them by the enlisted men. It was the first chance the officers had had to spend American money for a long time, and they spent it so enthusiastically that prices rose dizzily.

High Priced But Worth It

The cost of a can of milk, or pound of powdered milk, rose to $25, a 12 oz. can of corned beef was worth as much as $25; a package of American cigarets brought $6. The enlisted men were given more to eat than the officers, so the latter occasionally even bought leftover food. Sour flour buns sold for $1 each, with more bidders than the enlisted men could supply. One boy is said to have amassed nearly $25,000 during his stay at Mukden. If so, he earned every penny of it, for the chances he took were appalling.

Another American soldier, a boy of Polish extraction, got out of the factory one evening with a bottle of ink and a few pencils—a semi-priceless haul in view of the extreme shortage of such things at camp. The bottle was too big to get in the false bottom of a food bucket, however. But the Polish boy recalled that the Jap sentry at the prison gate seldom inspected the under portion of the food bucket cart. So he climbed under it and was in the process of fastening the haul to the bottom of the cart's floor boards when a Jap soldier surprised him, seized him and the ink and pencils, and dragged him off.

Sticks To His Story

The boy explained quickly that he had seen someone under the cart and that the person had run into the factory's engine room when he approached. So he had crawled under to have a look.. and then the guard came along.

He was marched to the guardhouse, where he told the same story. The Jap guards leaped on him and gave him an excruciating beating. Again he told the same story. They beat him once more. He stuck to his story, and again he was whipped pitilessly. He repeated the story.

They made him stand at attention in front of the guardhouse all that bitter night, beat him several times the next day but never shook his story. After three days of this torture they released him, convinced that he was telling the truth.

The boy knew throughout the terrible beatings that if he did confess he would be beaten even worse, then thrown into solitary confinement for anywhere from a week to three months, awaiting trial.

Valuable Watch

Our men got their news at Mukden under easier terms. A wristwatch here brought a month's supply of papers, stolen from the factory offices by Jap soldiers and smuggled into camp by the enlisted men. The papers were delivered each night to Cols Hoffman and Wood, and after they had made two paraphrases of the news the papers were burned, and so were the paraphrase sheets when they had been read.

To protect the translators, our men strung themselves out all over the barracks, posted our own guards at the windows. When a Jap approached one of our "outposts" our guard would say "Butch"—and this warning word would be passed all the way up to the translating colonels.

Our enlisted men at the factory became so adept at appearing to be busy at work, when they were not, that the Japs never knew they had gone into the pipe-making business. They turned out really wonderful pipes, some even having hard-rubber stems and machined aluminum filters, thanks to stolen Jap materials. These pipes they sold or gave to officers back at the camp, where cigarets were so scarce that pipes—and such rancid Manchurian tobacco as was available—had to be used by inveterate smokers.

Eisenhower Brings 7 High Pointers Home

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Nov. 13—Seven high-point GI's agreed General Dwight D. Eisenhower was a "regular guy" when they arrived with him on a surprise journey home for discharge yesterday.

At the general's request the seven were picked from the Marburg Reinforcement depot, in Germany, on Sunday, and flown with the general in his plane, "Sunflower II." They went with the plane to Washington, from where they will be sent to their discharge centers.

The general read western stories most of the trip, reported his fellow travelers, who included Pvt Robert E. White, Kent, O.

Army Still No. 1 in Nation, Irish Shoved Back to Seventh

Navy Climbs to No. 2 Spot, Ohio State Ninth in Weekly Associated Press Grid Poll.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Army's smashing victory over Notre Dame Saturday convinced virtually every one but the Pacific coast football experts that the Cadets are the No. 1 college grid team in the country.

Of the 20 votes cast in the Sun Francisco region, 13 of the critics relegated Army, No. 1 team all season in the weekly Associated Press poll, to second and gave five firsts to Navy, four to St. Mary's and four to Alabama.

Only other dissenter among the 105 voters was Harold Harris of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, who rated Alabama above the Cadets.

Army garnered 21 first place nominations and grabbed second on each of the remaining ballots.

Navy, which showed its best form of the season in downing Michigan Saturday, moved into the runnerup slot behind the team the Middies will meet in Philadelphia on Dec 1. The Sailors climbed from fourth place while Notre Dame skidded from second to seventh.

Alabama retained third place and was followed in order by Indiana, St Mary's Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Oklahoma A. & M., Ohio State and Holy Cross.

Michigan and Columbia, two members of the elite group a week ago, dropped out following their defeats Saturday.

PROS AT CLEVELAND WON'T FREE BROWN

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13 — Reports that Lt. Paul E. Brown, former Ohio State university football coach, now in the Navy, was being sought for the post of athletic director and football coach of the University of Kentucky were answered by Arthur J. McBride, owner of Cleveland Browns' in the projected All-America Football league.

McBride, who has Brown under a five-year contract to coach his professional gridders, said last night:

"We just couldn't release Mr. Brown from his contract. By the end of the year we will have at least a $100,000 investment in the Browns in players, coaches and other expenses and Paul is the key man in our setup."

Brown reportedly signed with the Cleveland club for $25,000 a year and is receiving $1,000 a month while in the service.

The University of Kentucky is prohibited by law from paying a coach more than $5,000 a year.

Week-End May Bring Showdown in Big 10 Race

By JIMMY JORDAN
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 13 — This may be showdown week in the Western conference football race.

Purdue and Michigan play in one game that, barring a tie, will knock one or the other out of a contending spot for the championship held by Ohio State. The Buckeyes play Illinois in a game in which an upset definitely is within the realm of possibility.

Only Indiana among the top title contenders—and the only unbeaten team in the conference—has a day off insofar as league competition is concerned. The Hoosiers play at Pittsburgh Saturday.

Illinois, beset by injuries all season, still has a good line and expects to have its attack strengthened Saturday with Eddie Bray back in the halfback post he left because of injuries.

Purdue Favored

Purdue and Michigan will have their little bout at Ann Arbor, with the Boilermakers possibly favored after their 21-7 victory over Miami of Ohio last week while Navy was pounding the Wolverines, 33-7.

If Purdue gets past Michigan, Ohio State still has to beat Illinois to stay in the race and then the Buckeyes will have to beat Michigan.

Coach Cecil Isbell put the Boilermakers through a stiff drill on both offense and defense as he sought replacements for guards Bill Horvath and Harold Holz, hurt in the Miami game.

Coach Carroll Widdoes of Ohio State brought his charges onto the grid to try to snap them out of the apparent lethargy that afflicted them last week when they beat Pittsburgh, 14-0, while Coach Ray Eliot of Illinois held a long drill.

On Other Fields

Elsewhere around midwest grids: Coach Bernie Bierman at Minneapolis planned a wholesale shakeup of his squad, after 12 players failed to show up for practice following Saturday's 49-0 beating by Indiana... Indiana took things easy as the Hoosiers looked forward to their Nov. 24 game with Purdue by holding a comparatively light workout.

Northwestern's regulars took things easy, preparing for Notre Dame, but feared Bruce Bairstow, hard-running halfback, still may be missing because of injuries ... Notre Dame took a day off but bemoaned the probable loss of tackle Pete Berezney, halfback Phil Colella and fullback Frank Ruggerio, injured in the Army game.

Wisconsin held a stiff drill in preparation for the Navy game at Baltimore.

MAJORS SET MARK

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—Less than a year ago the major leagues wondered if it would be possible to complete another wartime baseball schedule. Not only did they finish out the schedule and a sizzling World Series, but in the American league set a new all-time record of 5,580,420 cash customers for the season.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Hughie DeVore, who ought to have as good judgment on the subject as any guy who has received two knockout wallops in succession, won't go too far out on a limb about the Army-Navy game . . . "Navy has the makings of a great club, but right now you'd have to give Army the advantage," says the Notre Dame coach . . . "But I hear Navy used a lot of plays against Michigan that they didn't use against us." . . . If Penn State receives a "bow" invitation, which isn't unlikely, even Coach Bob Higgins doesn't know whether they can accept. Bob, in fact, shudders at the though after seeing what his club did to bowl-minded Temple last Saturday.

Even when his Navy football teams were winning, the late Col. Emery (Swede) Larson wasn't one to toot his own horn . . . A Marine officer who served under Swede as an enlisted man, tells this story of receiving a letter posted the day after Larson's Navy team had beaten Army in 1939 . . . The Marine, stationed in Guatemala, ripped it open, hoping to learn the real dope on the victory . . . But Larson, a stamp collector, merely had written to ask if his friend had found any more foreign stamps for him.

CHUCK HUNTER WINS NOD OVER "COWBOY"

Hometown Fighter Promising in 10-Rounder at Cleveland.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Nov. 13—Cleveland's Chuck Hunter today pointed for an early match with one of three outstanding welterweights after decisioning Reuben (Cowboy) Shank, late of the U. S. Coast Guard, in an arena 10-rounder.

It was a unanimous verdict for the one-time Cleveland Golden Gloves champ, who floored Shank for nine counts in both the third and fourth rounds last night. Hunter weighed 150, Shank 150½.

Nevertheless, Shank stayed in punching all the way.

Matchmaker Larry Atkins earlier announced he held options on three welterweights — Jimmy Doyle, Tony Panaro and Harold Green—to meet the winner of the Hunter-Shank scrap here soon.

In an eight-round semi-final, Jerry Berthiaume, 183, of Montreal, Canada, knocked out Ray Cobbs, 203, of Boston in 1:34 of the first with a left hook to the jow.

Six-round preliminary results were:

Bobby Berry, 172, of Cleveland knocked out Henry Jackson, 173, of Pittsburgh in 37 seconds of the third.

Billy Walker, 154, of New York, knocked out Art Robinson, 159, of Pittsburgh, at 2:48 of the second.

Bobby Lalonde, 139, of Detroit, won a technical knockout over Chuck Lloyd, 132, of Cleveland in 26 seconds of the third.

Feller Seeks Vets' Refresher Training

By The Associated Press

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov. 13—Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians pitcher, today proposed that major and minor baseball leagues sponsor a three-week pre-spring training refresher course for war-veteran players who will join their clubs next spring.

Feller said in an interview he would be willing to assume leadership in the movement for a free school, either at Brownsville, Tex., or St. Petersburg, Fla., to help war veteran players get into top physical condition and regain some of the timing and precision that became dusty in the armed forces.

Amateur players also would be invited.

LEADS U. S. SCORERS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Walter Trojanowski, the University of Connecticut's flashy touchdown maker, today led the nation's individual football scorers by 28 points with a total of 108. He bolstered his lead Saturday with a four touchdown spree against Maine. Trojanowski gets his last chance to increase his total Saturday against Boston U.

MINISTERS SEEK APOLOGY

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Nov. 13—The Akron Ministerial association is demanding an apology from Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughn, military aide to President Truman, for what the group said was a "slur" on Army chaplains. Their demand referred to recently-quoted statements by Vaughn about Protestant ministers serving in the armed forces. He said some of them "apparently are not regular fellows."

Canton-Massillon Classic Heads Ohio Grid Program

Teams Among Top Squads in State; Only 13 Left with Perfect Records for Season.

By HAROLD HARRISON
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 13—The golden jubilee battle between Canton McKinley and Massillon draws its annual spot at the top of the schedule this week as the 1945 Ohio high school football season virtually reaches its end.

Cleveland's annual big charity game and the scattered Thanksgiving day engagements will remain after this week, but for the most part the boys will be ready to turn their attention to basketball.

Both Canton McKinley and Massillon are rated as among the top teams in the state and then of course the game has become an Ohio classic regardless of what might be at stake.

McKinley, a 20 to 0 victor over Lakewood last week, has won seven games lost one and tied one. Massillon has won five games and tied four others. The Tigers' fifth victory was a 26 to 6 conquest of Cleveland East Tech last week.

Four more teams were dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten and untied last week, leaving 13 still without a blemish on their records.

Carey Drops Out

Ironton, Carey and Piqua suffered their first defeats and Cincinnati Purcell had a 16-game winning streak snapped by a 7 to 7 tie with Cincinnati Roger Bacon. Carey and Piqua had the satisfaction of knowing, however, that it took another unbeaten and untied team to lick them. Carey was beaten by Upper Sandusky and Piqua by Dayton Chaminade. Chaminade came from behind three times to win, 19 to 18.

Most dopesters seemed inclined to rate these teams (listed alphabetically) as tops in the state:

1935—Lawson Little with British Amateur Cup at height of his career.

TODAY—Same Lawson Little after gaining and losing 25 pounds in the Navy.

British Open and Amateur and U S Open and Amateur—Little reached the second round in the National Amateur In 1932 he bowed in the opening round, but the following year, at the age of 20, he reached the semi-final. The next two years he scored with ease in the national amateurs, first at Brookline Mass., then at Cleveland

But it was in May, 1934 that he set the golfing world on fire by winning his first major tournament, taking the British Amateur. He beat Jim Wallace on the 23rd hole, 14 and 13. At the halfway mark he was 12 up, scoring an eagle and seven birdies along the way. He beat Dr. W. ... Tweddell ... within the crow... 1935.

When the year was up Little was awarded the James E. Sullivan Award.

In 1936 he turned pro for a $10,000 first year contract with a shoe company. Four months later he won his first title as a pro, taking the Canadian Open with a 271 for 72 holes.

The following year he annexed the San Francisco match play title and in 1939 he accepted the job as pro at Stanton Woods, N. H. In 1940 he turned in a blazing two-under-par final round 65 to capture the Los Angeles Open. Five months later he beat Gene Sarazen by three strokes in the playoff at the National Open at Williamsville, Ohio.

Shot A 62 In Texas

One of Little's incredible rounds came in 1941 when he took the Texas Open. His 62 beat Ben Hogan by three shots.

Little who served as a Navy lieutenant at Honolulu where he played with friendly competition, will spend the next few weeks practicing for Bing Crosby's tournament at Del Mar, Calif. the last week in December.

If Lawson ever was semblance of his once great style, golf's comeback trail will be worth watching.

Operation of a body and fender repair shop by Carey Bush on his property at 306 Franconia avenue was discussed before council, by residents of the street and neighborhood both favoring and opposing the request of Mr. Bush who seeks to build an addition to a building on his property to carry on his work. Decision in the matter was carried over until the next meeting in two weeks so that council might have ample time to weigh the arguments.

Practically all residents of Polk and several other streets in the northeast section of the city are desirous of having gas installed in their homes, representatives of the community informed council, in backing up a petition filed earlier this year. The matter will be brought up again at the next council meeting and at this time C. E. Sechrist, manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. will be asked to be present.

Airport Sale Action Set

Consideration of an ordinance authorizing the sale of 140 acres of land west of the city known as the Marion airport, by the safety-service director, will be a matter of business at an adjourned meeting of council set for 7:30 o'clock next Friday night, it was voted.

The clerk read a letter from the city planning commission recommending favorable action on a petition of the Marion Federal Savings and Loan Co. asking the transfer of real estate on Gill avenue from a residential to a commercial zone and Dec. 24 was set for a public hearing.

An ordinance authorizing the safety-service director to purchase an automobile in the open market without advertising and at the best price obtainable for use by the police department, was given three reading and adopted as was a resolution authorizing the installation of a street light on Foster Lane, midway between Olney avenue and Blaine avenue, and one at the intersection of the first alley east of North State street running south from East George street and the first alley running east and west, by the Marion-Reserve Power Co.

Cruiser Sale Authorized

Approval was given an ordinance authorizing the sale of a police cruiser belonging to the city, and also one authorizing the transfer of an appropriation from the general fund to the police department equipment fund the sum of $1,600.

A petition bearing the signatures of 30 persons seeking the installation of a stoplight at the intersection of South State and ... streets was referred to the traffic committee with a request that they report at the next meeting. Minor street repairs were referred to the various departments.

Dr. Akers Gives Sermon on Value of Religion

Speaking last night in Epworth Methodist church especially to men Dr. L. B. Akers of Steubenville, O., took for his theme "The Bread and Butter Value of Religion." Last night was designated as Men's night and men of the congregation sang "The Old Rugged Cross." The choir's special number was "The Kingdom of God."

Dr. Akers stated that some years ago an editor of the "Technical Science" magazine in a scientific way began a study to ascertain if there was a "bread and butter" value to religion, or as he put it a "dollar" value to immortality. The article cited three different instances who had proved conclusively to the satisfaction of the writer that there was a dollar value to immortality and that a man who was anchored to a religious conviction or experience had an inner poise a serenity of spirit, that enabled him to be, all things considered, a superior workman to the ordinary type. Dr. Akers then gave a graphic illustration from his early ministry to substantiate the belief in the "bread and butter" value of religion. A fine attendance of men was seen at this service.

Tomorrow evening Dr. Akers will speak on "The Last Christ."

Memorial Services Honor Lt. Quigley

Memorial services for Second Lt. Jesse A. Quigley, son of Mrs. Lillian Quigley of 193 Bellefontaine avenue, were held Sunday in Emanuel Lutheran church immediately following the morning worship service with Rev. M. E. Hollensen officiating.

During the tribute to the young man, who was first reported missing over Austria, Aug. 25, 1944, a close friend, Lt. William Smoot of South Vine street, placed a wreath before the honor roll which bears the names of six boys who have been officially listed as killed in action.

Lt. Quigley was listed as a casualty after a year had lapsed without the family receiving any additional information concerning his whereabouts.

He was graduated from Harding High school in 1942 and enlisted in the air corps in 1943. He received his wings as a fighter pilot and was assigned to overseas duty in June of 1944.

SGT. WATTS' PILOT HEARS OF ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Newspaper Item First Tidings of Marion Co. Man's Survival.

When Delta Air Lines pilot Luke Williamson saw a recent news account concerning Tech. Sgt. Donald R. Watts of the Smeltzer road it was the first time he knew that Watts, who had been jerked from a plane over China, had survived. Williamson, then a lieutenant colonel, was piloting the transport on which Sgt. Watts was a crew member. Watts was unloading cargo over Hengyang, China in July of 1944 when the shrouds of one of the packages became entangled around his legs and jerked him from the plane. He was able to land without injury with the aid of his own parachute. Until the recent account Williamson did not know the whereabouts of the young man, according to a public relations report from the municipal airport at Atlanta, Ga. where Williamson is now working.

Watts, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Watts, returned recently from a Jap prison camp and found he had to prove his identity before he could receive his back pay since he had been reported dead.

UNION AUXILIARY MEETS

Ladies' auxiliary No. 277 to Roosevelt Lodge No. 1281 and Local No. 1059, Machinists, A. F. of L., met in the Marion Central Labor Union hall last night. Mrs. Mae Baldauf was in charge of the meeting which opened with the pledge of allegiance.

Mrs. Mary Gosnell announced the beginning of a new Union Labor contest. Mrs. Lila Shultz won the sunshine award. Delegates for the convention to be held in St. Louis next year will be selected at the next meeting, it was reported.

RYE PRICES REACH NEW 25-YEAR HIGH

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 13—The nearby deliveries of rye advanced the full five cent limit permitted in one day's trade at the opening of grain futures trading today and held there throughout the session. The price was a new 25-year high, with December at $1.90½ and May at $1.82½. The other contracts were at the ceiling of $1.44½.

Short covering marked the advance but there was little or no rye for sale. The full limit advance was also recorded at Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange ordered a 75 cent margin for trade in rye and until further notice, the daily fluctuation shall be limited to one cent a bushel up or down from the previous close.

The nearby contracts in wheat held at ceiling throughout the day with deferred deliveries up a cent or more at times. Corn also was at ceiling, $1.18½, with the results the bulk of the day's activities were transferred to the oats pit where heavy profit taking resulted in losses of two cents or more from the day's high.

CLUB FAVORS V-J DAY LIMIT ON HONOR ROLL

Resolution Adopted at Meeting of Navy Group.

A resolution drawn up by A. Lester Watt, past commander, and Vern F. Griffith, commandant, was directed to the honor roll committee of Marion county at a meeting of the Marion Navy club Monday night. The petition to the committee was to close the Marion county honor roll as of the day the "shooting war" ended, otherwise known as V-J Day.

The club deems it unfair to the men and women from this county who have fought and died in the shooting war to continue to add to the honor roll names of those who will act only as replacements with no particular personal danger involved.

Plans were made to recondition the Navy club's ship, which is in "dry dock" at present. A new membership drive in charge of Floyd Seaton will be launched at the next meeting, Nov. 26.

Approximately $200 was realized from the recent Anchor day tag sale sponsored by the Navy club, it was reported by Mrs. Evelyn Reynolds. Proceeds have been added to the club's relief fund.

Club Makes Donation to United War Chest

At a meeting of the Marion County Democratic club Monday night in Democratic headquarters reports were given on the Democratic Women's convention held in Columbus last week and a donation of $10 was made to the United War Chest fund. Those making reports on the Columbus meeting were Mrs. Lewis Uhl and Miss Estella Smith, delegates from Marion, and Mrs. Harry Armstrong of LaRue.

UTILITIES LEAD TRADING TODAY

Dealings Among Most Active of Year in Power and Light Shares.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Led by low-priced utilities, the stock market generally resumed the advance today with dealings among the most active of the year.

While Wall Street was far from impressed by the character of the leadership, few real bearish arguments were in evidence.

Power and light company issues were all over the ticker tape with Commonwealth & Southern starting on a 100,000-share block, up ½ at 4, a new high for the move. While losers were plentiful, gains of fractions to a point or more predominated near the fourth hour.

At peaks for almost nine years were American Water Works, United Corp., Standard Gas $5 preferred, Alaska Juneau, Anaconda and Childs Co. Ahead most of the time were Bethlehem, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Baltimore & Ohio common and preferred, Standard Oil (NJ), Dome Mines and Dow Chemical. Laggards included Sears Roebuck, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, International Nickel and International Harvester.

lican members to go individually into government files.

Neither Hatch nor Willis is on the committee.

Committee Republican Rep. Keefe (Wis) went out to the Bethesda, Md., Naval hospital again yesterday to see Capt. Alwin D. Kraner, described by Keefe as the officer who carried to high officials an intercepted message indicating the Japanese were planning to attack.

The Wisconsin representative came back to tell a news conference he had obtained what he called "proof" of his contention that Kramer was being "badgered" to change his story.

Congress today also concerned itself with:

The presidency—house leaders prepared for a real scrap over a proposed amendment to the U. S. Constitution limiting any president to eight years in office. Rep. Joe Martin, the Republican leader of the house, introduced the proposal and will fight for it. Rep. John McCormack, the Democratic leader, will fight against it. The house elections committee begins hearings Thursday.

Demobilization — the senate naval committee met to investigate the shipping situation; that is, shipping of high-point servicemen back to the U. S. where they can be released.

Auto prices—Price Administrator Chester Bowles was called to testify on the prices of new cars before a house committee. Auto dealers last week protested against any cuts in their profits.

line" with "those who fought for the Magna Charta, and habeas corpus, with the Pilgrim fathers and with the signatories of the Declaration of Independence."

In following their different economic courses, Attlee said, it is important that the U. S. and Britain "should understand each other and other nations whose institutions differ from our own."

"I hope to see a world as orderly as a well-run town, with citizens diverse in character but cooperating for the common good," he said.

Need Christian Rule

Attlee said the world's greatest task today is to "bring home to all people before it is too late that our civilization can only survive by the acceptance and practice in international relations and in our national life of the Christian principle—we are members of one another."

It was, he said, particularly "in the light—the terrible light—of the atomic bomb" that he had crossed the Atlantic to confer with Mr. Truman.

The discussions were launched, he added, "in order that we may get together with all the nations of the world and consider what kind of a world it is necessary to have if civilization is to endure and if the common man in all lands is to feel secure."

With the bomb obviously in mind, Attlee declared the United States is "the mightiest power on earth."

"And yet," he added, "America is a threat to no one. All know that she will never use her power for selfish aims or territorial aggrandizement in the future any more than she has done in the past.

"We look upon her forces and our forces and those of other nations as instruments that must never be employed, save in the interests of world security and for the repression of the aggressor."

sire to cut down her suspicions of them and to invite more powerful cooperation within the framework of the United Nations.

Russia, on the other hand, would be expected, under Attlee's plan, "to take political actions designed to reassure the rest of the world about her policies and objectives."

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

PURPOSELY I kept my eyes averted from Olina's face as I made my disclaimer of ever bringing up from the depths of my memory the tender confidences concerning her farewell to Georges which she had given me. Her start of shamed chagrin at my first apparent agreement with her had prodded me into even more emphatic negation than I had intended.

But I had my reward when, at my last question, she flew over to me, all her regal reserve melted, and hugged me as enthusiastically as a school girl might.

"Darling Auntie Madge!" she caroled. "Of course I believe you. How you manage it, I don't know, but you always extract the last barb from the wound. Now I can look back on my memories without chagrin."

"I am so glad," I told her sincerely. "And now, when I have told you one more thing which is near my heart, I must leave you."

"May I tell you one thing first?" she asked. "A resolve I have made which I think you will approve."

"Of course, dear girl," I said and after a last warm embrace, she went back to her own chair and sat down, leaning forward and holding my eyes with hers.

Unlike Mary

"I am sure that Georges loves me for my own qualities," she said, "if it doesn't sound conceited, because I am unlike Mary."

I caught back the smile which would have been dynamite at this moment, and again doffed a mental chapeau to Georges. He had been most thorough in his work.

"For instance," she said, "while Mary in all probability could hold a man who loved her by never letting him be sure of her, and by carrying on harmless but provocative flirtations with other admirers, I could not. If I tried it, I would make a botch of it, and make myself a laughing stock in Georges' eyes, which would be fatal.

"No," she went on, "my role is that of wife to a king, because despite all Georges' protestations of wanting to be an American, he is still a king at heart. I must keep my dignity and my poise, yet give him the warmest possible love, and the knowledge that I am always in the background, waiting to help him."

Admirable Role

"That is a very admirable role, Olina," I said as she paused, "and it fits in with what I was going to tell you."

I waited the fraction of a second while I pieced my words together.

"Even if Georges were in love with Mary, which he is not"—I wafted a sympathetic sigh to Sapphira—"I am sure he never could be happy with her in marriage—as happy as he undoubtedly will be with you. You and he have been brought up with the same ideas and the same training. Neither of you ever can forget them.

"Therefore you will have one of the best foundations for marriage comradeship — and there is no marriage worthy the name without comradeship—congeniality of traditions and ideas. But I strongly disapprove of one premise you have named."

She looked at me with dismayed inquiry.

Glad to Rest

"I do not believe Georges will be untrue to you," I said, again invoking the shade of Sapphira. "You have unusual beauty, grace, brains, tact, and a heart filled with love for him. The memory of your last minutes together will inspire and safeguard him while he is gone, and when he returns—you notice I am not saying if—he will be so glad to rest in the sanctuary of your love that he never will stray again."

She drew a deep breath of unfeigned relief, and her voice was husky when she answered me.

"Dear Auntie Madge, you never can know how happy you have made me!" she said fervently.

"I am so glad, dear," I said, looking at my wrist watch.

But she suddenly leaned forward, put out her hand and covered the dial.

"Please! Just one minute more!" she pleaded. "I want to tell you that in one respect I am going to take a leaf out of Mary's book."

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M. D.

Whooping Cough Vaccine

Whooping cough is always a worry to patents. And, although during the last five years, the number of cases of whooping cough has dropped to a great extent, unfortunately the death rate of this disease in children under one year of age, continues to be altogether too high. It is unfortunate that methods for protecting children under six months of age from whooping cough cannot be employed because babies just do not develop immunity at this early age.

Whooping cough vaccine for preventing this disease, therefore, is usually not administered until the baby is about six months old. Hence, if deaths from this disease are to be prevented, it is necessary that methods be found for treating children who already have whooping cough, and for protecting those who are exposed to it, by the injection of some serum which will give immunity for a short time at least.

For both these purposes, there has been developed what is known as human hyperimmune whooping cough serum. In preparing this serum, adults who were known to have had whooping cough in their childhood were given injections of whooping cough vaccine every four months. At the end of the first four months and at varying times thereafter, blood serum was taken from them and this serum is called human hyperimmune serum.

Tests of this human hyperimmune whooping cough serum have been carried out in large groups of children. Doctor Harriet M. Felton of Philadelphia used it in 308 infants and children who were exposed to whooping cough. About eight out of ten did not get the disease. Of 137 children who were continuously exposed, more than two-thirds escaped the infection entirely. In children who are not protected by hyperimmune serum, only one or two out of every ten escaped the infection.

The serum is given by injection into a muscle. Two injections three days apart are usually employed. The serum can be injected into a vein if it is desired. The best results according to Doctor Felton were obtained when given soon after exposure.

The serum has also been used in children who have already developed whooping cough. Excellent or good results were obtained in seven out of ten instances. The injections in such cases are given two days apart, three injections being employed. If the child is critically ill, it is suggested that the serum be given by injection into a vein.

There is an advantage in using human hyperimmune whooping cough serum for the treatment and prevention of whooping cough, since this serum has not been observed to cause any severe local or general reaction. It is probable that the use of this serum will result in the saving of many lives.

(Dr. Bundesen will answer letters containing medical questions only through his columns.)

Meetings Scheduled by Salvation Army

COM. LEE GAUGH

A ten-day series of revival meetings will be conducted by Commander Lee Gaugh, D. D. of Lima, beginning Wednesday evening and continuing through Nov. 25, at the Salvation Army citadel at 141 North Prospect street. The meeting will be held each night except Saturday, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Commander Gaugh is a former resident of Mar on and was the officer in charge of the Marion Salvation Army Corps for a number of years.

Marion Church Group Guests at Delaware

Members of the W S C S of Epworth Methodist church were guests of Mrs. Mary Brewster Howlister of 179 Winter street, Delaware for the November meeting, Thursday afternoon. Following a short business session during which officers were elected there was a program.

Officers elected to serve for two years are Mrs. Dale Lawrence, first vice president, Mrs. Fred Sherwood third vice president; Mrs. W. A Linton, corresponding secretary, Mrs. W D. McGee, secretary of publications and literature; Mrs. F. C. Burns, secretary of spiritual life. Mrs W E. Miley, president of the society, and Mrs. E. C. Garver, secretary, were among the officers elected last year for a term of two years.

Mrs. Howlister, who with her husband, professor of Bible at Ohio Wesleyan university, spent many years in the mission fields of China, talked on her work there and the guests were given an opportunity to view many of the valuable pieces of porcelain, and other articles brought from China. Mr. and Mrs. Howlister plan to return to China next year. Mrs. John H. Clark conducted the devotions on the theme, "Bridges." Later there was a tea with Mrs. S. M. Ingmire presiding.

U. S. Steel Chief To Air Views Tonight

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 13—Another precedent in the sale of time for discussion of controversial issues was indicated in an ABC announcement that a 15-minute period had been taken by the American Iron and Steel Institute for 8:15 tonight in which Benjamin F. Fairless, president of U S Steel, would speak "for the steel industry."

Previously the network had sold time to CIO for a bi-weekly discussion series of four broadcasts, with President Philip Murray in charge. One of these programs was on the air last night.

MARTIN BORMANN

By The Associated Press

Forty-five-year-old Martin Bormann, successor to Rudolf Hess as chief of the Nazi party chancellery, was described a year ago by a German refugee writer as "one of the most ruthless Nazi organizers who ever made murder his calling . . . His career follows the pattern of many a top-flight Nazi—misfit, adventurer, desperado." Born into a middle class family in 1900, Bormann received a good education, failed at dodging conscription in the last war, and entered the army to receive no promotions, distinguish himself in no way . . . As a Nazi his uniform was heavily be-medaled . . . In 1943 he was reported one of four top Nazis picked to succeed Hitler in case of disaster.

In the True Spirit of Appreciation...

"Chuck" Gallaher

I want to extend my sincere thanks to each and every patron who helped make my "first year" so successful!!

You've heard the old saying . . . "the first year is the hardest"! Well, in some ways it is but in most ways, it isn't. Especially when you are doing business with such fine people as it has been my pleasure to meet.

I take pardonable pride in the many improvements that have been made at the Fish Sandwich Shop during the past twelve months. Our kitchen has been enlarged . . . our dining room has been completely redecorated and remodelled. Our facilities for private parties have been expanded so that we can now handle groups numbering up to 65 people.

I have endeavored to give you the finest prompt, and efficient service possible and have increased the number of waitresses and cooks to twelve now! Every effort is being made to serve only the very highest quality foods at all times. The size of food portions served has not been reduced.

I have endeavored to do my very best to make The Fish Sandwich Shop a restaurant you would also take pride in patronizing. I extend my heartfelt thanks to every patron . . . without your generous patronage this would not be possible.

Ever striving for improvement, it is with a great deal of optimism that I look forward to another successful year (and it will be successful if hard work and intelligent effort count) and many, many years to follow.

Again, thanks friends, from the bottom of my heart.

(signed) "Chuck" Gallaher

Misery of Japs Stirs Yanks— To Charity and Black Market

By HAL BOYLE
AP Feature Writer

TOKYO, Nov. 13 — Japanese misery is simultaneously creating here one of the greatest black markets in the world, and slowly turning among American occupation troops a strong sympathy for the people they have been trained for years to hate.

It goes against the grain of the American soldier to see even enemies suffer, if they are old men and wives and children. And you can walk anywhere in the rusted ruins of this Japanese capital and see these people coldly and silently starving.

Hal Boyle

I doubt if any warring people anywhere ever took a crushing military defeat in better grace than the Japanese—at least on the surface—or cooperated more fully with their victors. There have been phenomenally few post-war disturbances among this pint-sized race, accustomed for centuries to lifelong obedience and frugality and exploitation.

Whatever world comeback Japan's present servile leaders may be plotting in generations to come—and it's doubtful if their dreams of future empire have died, any more than Nazism can be said to be fully stamped out—vast numbers of the tired and numbed people combing the wreckage of their finest city won't live to lift the banner of the rising sun again.

Masses Are Suffering

Those leaders won't starve this winter, but thousands of the poor people who dumbly followed them into the war will. The rich Zaibatsu may deplore the breaking up of their snug trusts and profitable cartels. Their plants and buildings may be taken from them. They won't die of pneumonia, tuberculosis, exposure or malnutrition. Dying thus is strictly the privilege of the poor and the former middle classes—Japanese who had no country house to which they could move when firebombs razed their Tokyo homes, and who now have no reservoir of hidden yen to buy food on the black market.

There are two black markets in Japan now—the black market of money and the black market of compassion. Both are run by American soldiers violating orders.

The money black market is run both by individual soldiers and by highly organized military gangs operating with Japanese or European civilian fences. Misery and cupidity will spread it—as they did in Naples.

Already hungry Japanese on bicycles openly halt passing soldiers carrying parcels and try to buy any food or cigarets. A carton of cigarets, the universal currency of the needy, brings up to 300 yen—$20. A five-cent chocolate bar can be sold anywhere on the streets of Tokyo for 20 yen—$1.33. One case of 10-in-one rations (a mixture of canned goods in a small carton) can be marketed for 2,000 yen—$133.

Prices To Go Up More

With the increasing food shortage, winter will force these prices higher—increasing the temptation to American supply troops stationed here to risk imprisonment by selling on this market. Patrons are chiefly the wealthy and full-bellied Japanese, who will worry little about their countrymen's fate or about the fact they themselves are fattening by financing American theft.

Military police have broken up one of these soldier gangs and are investigating others.

Little effort is being made, however, to break up the black market of compassion. The active ones here are soldiers and officers who give up their own rations of food, candy and cigarets to impoverished Japanese acquaintances or toss them—almost with a guilty gesture—to the poor they pass in the streets.

If military police picked up all of these soldiers, they would have to build several more guardhouses.

One militant commander seeking to halt the spread of this wave of sympathy, has put up banners recalling Japanese cruelty during the war and ordered that servicemen leaving his post be searched so they cannot carry out items to give away.

Other officers say frankly that they cannot observe fully orders against feeding army food to hired Japanese laborers.

"We compromise by giving them what extra food we can spare from our own issue," one officer told me. "Otherwise they wouldn't have the strength to work."

Japan has made the full circle now—from American scrap iron to American food scraps.

Patterson Backs Up Doolittle in Dispute

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Secretary of War Patterson backed up Army officers today with the assertion they may "express their own personal convictions with force and vigor" when discussing proposals to merge the armed forces.

Patterson took this stand in his reply to a letter from Secretary of the Navy Forrestal protesting statements by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle before the senate military committee.

Doolittle touched off the row when he remarked "Our B-29 boys are resting uneasily in their graves" because of claims by Admirals Chester W. Nimitz and Marc Mitscher about the importance of the Navy's role in the Pacific victory.

What Endocreme can do to bless you with a younger looking face

Think of the added beauty a more youthful face and throat can give! Then harken to this: Scientific research has proved that ENDOCREME can, for most women, contribute to this desirable result in a way formerly thought impossible. Many thousands are now finding that ENDOCREME actually helps to improve the skin itself, not just its transient, superficial "look." This is because ENDOCREME, alone, possesses ACTIVOL. This ACTIVOL is a scientific replacement for woman's own natural skin-vitalizing substance. Absorbed by the skin, it helps to restore the normal growth of cells and tissues. It thus aids the skin to become fresher, smoother, more alluringly "alive." What bigger value can any woman young or old ask for her cosmetic dollars? The great majority get big improvement in only 30 days.

THE RESEARCH CLUB held its annual guest day party yesterday afternoon at the Federation Home on East Center street with 20 guests present. A welcome was given to all guests by Mrs E. E. Sletvold, president of the club. Opening devotions were in charge of Mrs. H. E. Webster. He subject was "The Bible Is National As Well As Historical." Guest soloist of the afternoon was Capt. J. A. Schufle. He presented three selections, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. John Lacey. They were "Stay Thou Near By" by J. S. Bach, "I Wonder As I Wander" by Niles, and "Passing By" by Henry Purcell.

Miss Margaret Huffman introduced the guest speaker, Miss Lydia Ebel, week-day religious education instructor in the city schools. Her subject was "Holes In the Darkness." Mrs. George Turner, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. R. C. Alexander, sang two solos, "All For You" and "The Lord's Prayer." A dessert luncheon was served by a committee composed of Mrs. Alexander, Mrs. Ben Jacoby and Mrs J. F. Neidhart. The next meeting will be Nov. 26 with Mrs. H. S. Ruhl on Lafayette street.

Guests were Mrs. E. J. Schoenlaub, Mrs. Blyss Bonner, Mrs. U. A. Nystrom, Mrs. Dwight Carhart, Mrs. Ralph Carhart, Mrs. Ben Wiant, Mrs. [illegible] Snyder, Mrs Wayne Jenkins, Mrs. Cora Rexroth, Mrs A. F. Mau, Mrs. Bessie McMillen, Mrs. C. H. Bachelder, Miss Evelyn Showers, Mrs Maye Evans, Mrs Calvin Oborn, Mrs. Robert Klatt, Mrs. W. H. Pfeffler, Mrs. C. A. Lockwood, Mrs. Cloyce Taylor and Mrs. Walter Sheely.

Mrs. Clifford Howser was hostess to the Current Topic club Monday afternoon in her home on Lafayette street. A paper, "The Coming of the Irish," written by Mrs. Charles Staples, was presented by Mrs. O. D. Anderson, and "The Scotch-Irish Blood in the United States," another paper prepared by Mrs. J. Edgar Thomas, was read by Mrs H. T. Williams. Mrs. Anderson gave a report on the discussion held at the Federation home by Prof. H. W. Nisonger of Ohio State university last Friday on returning veterans. The next meeting will be at the Federation home with Miss Etta Jacoby as hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins of Courtland Terrace entertained a group of friends Sunday night with a dinner in honor of the first birthday anniversary of their daughter, Joan Ellene. Guests were Mrs. Mary Dennis of Delaware, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gundrum and daughters of Galion, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Mansfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Emery Roberts and sons of Prospect. Games and contests provided entertainment following the dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay Kuhn of the Smeltzer road entertained with a dinner Sunday for their son, Pvt Fay Kuhn of the U. S. Army, who was home on a week-end pass from Camp Atterbury, Ind. Guests aside from the family included Miss Dora Buckley of Morral and Ralph Lindsey.

Mrs. Roy Hensel was hostess when the Woman's club met yesterday afternoon at her home on Delaware avenue. For roll call the members named religious leaders in Russia 50 years ago and Mrs. LeRoy Adlard presented a paper, "The Russian Ballet and the Theater."

Mrs. J. C. Chaney gave a paper on "Russia" at a meeting of the Delphian club Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Detwiler of South Prospect street. Roll call responses were names of rivers and cities of Russia.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wilson of 503 Blaine avenue returned recently from Santa Rosa, Calif., where they have been visiting with their daughters, Mrs. Mary W. Grace and Mrs. Betty Cartwright, for the past month.

NAMES OMITTED

In an account of the fiftieth wedding anniversary celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fetter of the Columbus-Sandusky pike which appeared in last night's Star names of two guests were unintentionally omitted. They were Mrs. Edward Hetby of Waldo and Mrs. N. C. Schellhase, wife of Rev. Schellhase, who took part in the anniversary program. The celebration took place Sunday at the Fetter home.

Inspection Set At Sorority Chapter Meeting Tonight

MRS. EVA L. JOESTING

THE biennial inspection of Gamma Mu chapter of Delta Theta Tau will be conducted tonight in the Marion Club rooms at Hotel Harding. Inspecting officer will be Mrs. Eva L. Joesting of Cincinnati, national vice president of Delta Theta Tau.

Dinner will be at 6:30 p. m. and Miss Doris Welsh, vice president of the local chapter, will preside. For the inspection the chapter will conduct a business meeting and a model initiation.

Delta Theta Tau was organized in 1902 in Muncie, Ind., for advancement of philanthropy and welfare of its members. There are now 140 active chapters and 59 alumnae groups with a membership of 8,892. The national project of the organization is the maintenance of a mountain school in Brinkley, Ky., for children who would receive little or no education. Each chapter also supplies help in their own community. It is the largest non-academic organization of its kind in the United States.

White Shrine Reception Honors District Heads

Guests from Mansfield, Mt. Gilead, Cardington, Massillon and Bucyrus attended a reception held Monday night in the Masonic temple by Marion Shrine No. 15, White Shrine of Jerusalem for Mrs. Thelma Hartman, district No. 1 deputy and A. Milton Dye, deputy supreme watchman of shepherds, both of Mansfield.

Also present were Mrs. Dye, worthy high priestess of Mansfield Shrine and Warren S. Bower, supreme worthy guard of Massillon.

Mrs. Eve Hunter was in charge of the program, which included a reading by Mrs. Lulu Spain, a vocal trio by Mrs. Clara Campbell, Mrs. R. E. Acker and Mrs. Hunter accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Dorothy Sparks, and a piano duet by Mrs. Sparks and Mrs. Hunter.

The local patrol team exemplified their drill following the program. Arrangements were made by the patrol to attend patrol night of Mount Olive Shrine to be held in Columbus Friday night. Shrines from Dayton, Springfield and Marion will attend.

A covered dish luncheon will be held tomorrow noon at the temple by the White Shrine Sewing Circle, it was announced

POLICE VETERAN DIES

By The Associated Press

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Nov. 13 — James Haley, 70, retired city patrolman widely known throughout the Ohio valley for his work in tracking down criminals, died today. He served on the police force for 30 years before retiring in 1940 because of illness.

Weddings

Announcement [illegible] of the marriage of Mrs. Viola Taylor and Roscoe Tennar of Avondale avenue. The double ring ceremony was read Saturday evening at 7:30 by Rev. M. E. Hollensen, pastor of Emanuel Lutheran church, at his home on South Prospect street.

The couple was attended by Mr and Mrs George Snare of Waldo. Also attending the wedding was the bride's sister, Miss Gladys Jaggers of Marion.

For her wedding the bride chose a street length dress of fuchsia shade with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of red roses. Her only jewelry was a gold locket a gift of the bridegroom. Mrs. Snare was attired in a street length dress of blue flowered crepe with black accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

The couple will make their home at 534 Avondale avenue. Mr. Tennar is engaged in plumbing.

Sunday evening, the couple entertained about 20 guests at their home with a dinner. The table was decorated with red candles and flowers, and was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. They also received a two-tiered wedding cake as a gift.

Edgar S. Kelley Honored in Music Club's Program

MUSIC which included numbers by several American composers and a tribute to Dr. Edgar Stillman Kelley, dean of American composers, made up a program of the Marion Lecture-Recital club last night, a memorial to Dr. Kelley. The program was presented in the Hotel Harding ballroom. Capt. J. A. Schufle and Mrs. Gerald Jennings were guest soloists and members of the club presented groups of vocal and piano numbers. Mrs. Karl Schell prepared and read the tribute to Dr. Kelley.

Capt. Schufle, tenor, sang two groups of solos and an encore, while Mrs. Jennings played a piano solo. The program was opened with a patriotic number by a piano ensemble composed of Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Beaver Bricker, Miss Mary Heininger and Miss Elizabeth Pace. Selections by Capt Schufle and the solo by Mrs. Jennings followed. Mrs. Ralph Mills and Miss Wanda McMahon were heard in a group of piano duo numbers. A vocal ensemble was composed of Miss Mary Elizabeth Cook, Miss Elizabeth Edgar, Miss Phyllis Boyd, Miss Catherine Thew and Mrs. Evelyn Manter. The memorial to Dr. Kelley was followed by another group of selections by the piano ensemble, solos by Capt. Schufle, and a piano duo group of two numbers. Mrs. John Lacey was accompanist for Capt. Schufle and Miss Rosaline Manzo played for the vocal ensemble. Mrs Earl Burke was program aide. Mrs. H. T. Williams is program chairman.

In the tribute to Dr Kelley, whose death occurred Nov. 12, 1944, Mrs. Schell cited the versatility of his compositions, his work of promoting the interests of music, especially in his adopted state, Ohio. She paid tribute to his gracious personality and recalled various phases of his outstanding career.

NEW PLANT ACQUIRED BY MARYSVILLE CO.

H. B. Salter Co. Takes Over Kinsman Industry.

H. B. Salter, president of the H. B. Salter Mfg. Co of Marysville, announced there today that on Oct. 1 negotiations were completed for the acquisition of The Glauber Brass Mfg. Co, Kinsman, O., by the Salter Co., the controlling interest being purchased from Fred Prior, former president of the Glauber organization.

The Glauber name has long been associated with the brass industry and Glauber quality products were in demand from coast to coast. At the peak of their production era, while located in Cleveland, they gave employment to 700 people. Purchased by the Prior brothers during the depression and consolidated with the Rickersberg plant in 1934, the complete facilities were moved to a new plant in Kinsman in 1937.

The well equipped facilities of the Glauber plant cover 45,000 square feet. This, consolidated with the 105,000 square feet of the Salter Co., which includes one of the most modern of high production, mechanized foundries in the country will enable their combined resources, to offer a most complete line of brass plumbing goods and will go far in meeting the demands of the unprecedented building acuvity which lies ahead.

To facilitate distribution and serve the plumbing industry most effectively, the output of these combined Salter facilities will be sold exclusively through jobbing distributors.

The spark-plug for this progressive consolidation is Harlow B. Salter. Though young in years, he has foundry sand in his bones, since he is the third generation in following foundry production. His grandfather, a native of England, starting an iron foundry in the early 1870's. Mr. Salter was first exposed to foundry routine at the Ohio Brass Co. in Mansfield and after graduating from Ohio Wesleyan in 1931, he became associated with Atlas Brass of Columbus, the Glauber Brass Mfg. Co., and then with the Fisher Brass which was purchased by the H. B. Salter Mfg. Co in 1940.

The production of the Glauber plant will continue under the present management with Ray Warren as vice president and treasurer; Sylvan Grotte, plant manager; Al Trattner, purchasing agent and Horace Smith as superintendent. Continuing the work in which they have nationwide acceptance, the Glauber division will specialize in producing ground key work, built in fixtures, water works and laboratory fittings, gate valves, radiator valves and other brass goods.

Cow Blood Extract Controls Bleeding in Brain Surgery

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

CINCINNATI, Nov. 13—An extract from cow's blood, immersed in a "gelatin sponge," provides a new aid in the control of hemorrhages in delicate brain and nerve surgery, the Southern Medical association was told today.

Dr. Cobb Pilcher of Vanderbilt university said that for some time the thrombin, or blood-clotting agent, of bovine blood had offered possibilities of controlling bleeding, but that at first a means of applying it to bleeding points was lacking.

Then other investigators, he said, recently developed a "sponge" made of gelatin. Thrombin in liquid form can be caught up by the sponge and applied to a bleeding point. The gelatin is absorbed within the body, leaving the thrombin to do its blood-clotting work.

The sponge can be used to apply thrombin derived from human blood.

But Dr. Pilcher said he and other neurosurgeons had used such sponges to apply bovine thrombin in 174 cases.

"Bovine thrombin," he said, "has proven as satisfactory as human Thrombin as a hemostatic (bleeding control) agent and no harmful effects of any kind have been observed."

He added it was preferable to use bovine instead of human thrombin as a clotting agent because of the ready availability of cow's blood.

P. H. C. INITIATION PLANNED

At a meeting of Protected Home Circle No. 184 two candidates were obligated and nine applications were received Friday night in the Democratic hall. M. J. Bush, supervisor, reported results of the recent Cubins membership campaign. State Deputy and Mrs. S. C. Abel of Dayton and William Cubins, supreme vice president of Cleveland, will attend the initiation ceremony to be held next Friday night.

An evening of dancing will follow a get-together party in charge of C. I. Smithson and committee Nov. 23.

Anglo-Americanism

THE first postwar talks between President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Canada's prime minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, may help the American public to comprehend a little more clearly the significance of the relationship among the three governments.

One of the subjects that will be discussed is the atomic bomb, whose development as a weapon of critical importance in the war with Japan, was a joint project of the United States, Great Britain and Canada. Perhaps the significance of that collaboration has been overlooked in the attention given to the bomb and its military implications.

The conference may remind many of us, also, that in the inevitable skepticism that surges in the wake of the war the relations among the three governments have suffered a minimum of the deterioration which has disturbed confidence in the future of good relations with Russia, for example. In this country we have our share of British-baiting. The British undoubtedly have their share and a little more of American-baiting. Canada has not escaped the blight of carping criticism, either.

Nevertheless, only the most rabid cynics and searchers for ulterior motives are even suggesting that there is anything of sufficient importance to block reasonable hope of continued good relations, even improvement of the good relations already in existence. Those who always yearn instinctively for retreat into isolation after each hard new international experience are reminded in many ways in 1945 that to give in to instinct would betray their own and the American interest.

Perhaps the greatest single international fact at this moment is the alliance, however loose and disjointed it sometimes appears to be, of the English-speaking peoples. It is not exclusive. It seeks a harmonious working relationship with all other nationalities. It is as close to a natural confluence of aspirations and interests as anything that exists in a world whose component parts are in imminent danger of being divided by lack of will to stay together.

Hard on the Host

ONE unscheduled result that may spring out of the management-labor parley to the consternation of the state planners with national headquarters in Washington is mutual agreement on the shortcomings of state planning.

John L. Lewis broke the ice on the issue from a labor leader's point of view when he stated his opinion that government should quit being the third party in every collective bargaining meeting. Spokesmen for management are similarly hopeful that government may quit being the third party in every decision on prices.

To the extent the management-labor meeting may have been called under the aegis of that element in the Truman administration which apparently wants complete political control of all economic and social processes, agreement on the shortcomings of political control would be a sharp rebuke.

It would be, in fact, tantamount to a decision among the guests at a government party that their host had worn out his welcome and should let them alone in the future.

Gen. Doolittle's Last Bomb

CONGRESSMEN, like the public at large, are more likely to listen to witnesses who talk from experience about the need for a better coordinated national defense than to witnesses who talk from theory. Also, human nature being what it is, the word of a well-publicized figure is likely to get more attention than that of a lesser known figure.

This is the background for Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle's blunt testimony before the senate military affairs committee that there can be no military unity in wartime without military unity in peacetime; that battleships are obsolete and aircraft carriers obsolescent; and that the Navy has been overestimating its importance in Japan's surrender. The general is on his way to retirement, but his last bomb is atomic.

Gen Doolittle has stirred up the animals and made them angry. That is bad, because angry men don't think straight. But he also has stirred up the people and made them think, and that's good. When the people think about their government, its officials are not so likely to fall into the error of behaving as if they had a monopoly of decision. Many years ago an army officer named Billy Mitchell, who knew more about flying than fudging with politics, blew the Navy out of its quiet anchorages, tore the sleepy war department asunder, had his ears pinned back for his pains—but stirred up enough rumpus in the process to keep both of them from getting ready to fight the next war without air power, destined to be the dominant single factor in the outcome.

Of dozens of G. I.'s returned from the C.B.I. theater, none, as far as we know, is corresponding with a Burma girl a-setting by the old Moulmein Pagoda and smoking a mild cigar.

Captured documents reveal a Jap plan to take over our west coast. One can only think this would have been over the dead body of the last retired fowan.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Truth Hard To Get About China.

WASHINGTON, Nov 13—Nothing was published about accredited attacks made since peace in China upon American forces there several weeks ago.

I have private but direct information a United States navy repair ship was "shot up" floating down a river. I have also learned of numerous incidents where planes at American airfields have been shot at. Damage was done in most instances but there were no casualties.

Official authorities presumably kept these matters quiet for diplomatic purposes (Russia").

Instead the daily news routes from China are being piled with rather injured assertions from the Communist "New China Daily News" that the United States is—now don't laugh soldiers after the war you have been through there—"intervening in the domestic affairs of China." I suppose next the Commie press will be charging us with intervening in the affairs of Germany and Italy, where our troops also are.

Anyhow, in this instance, the Chinese Communists asserted whatever we did was disgraceful of us, because Russian troops were politely withdrawing from Chinese territory, in accordance with their treaty promise. They neglected to mention the Russian Communists had left them, the Chinese Communists, to start a civil war against the established allied Chinese government.

Commies Are Losing

All this means, of course, is that the Communists are losing their civil war. The only interpretation which should be put upon my above information is that it points again to the defect in the American free press system which allows foreign agencies to use us for their propaganda, tends to mislead our people, especially when our official authorities do not care to give out statements of the facts. We need to bulwark our free press against such easy ill-use.

A second way we are being deceived is with truth. Our professional liberals are riding the front pages and airwaves with assertions that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek is a dictator. They constantly present to our eyes and ears the truth that his regime is not a democracy. They say no more.

Well, the generalissimo has been what he is for many years now. No such international attacks on him were made during the war, or earlier—only now that the Communists have started a civil war against him.

Some of these American pros know their half-truths are Communist propaganda, Marxist pressure. They lend their efforts to a typical Commie trick, but other unthinking Americans do not, and gladly take up these deceptive fractional verities to contribute unwittingly to deceiving the entire world.

The whole truth is there are but two political regimes in China, neither of them democratic. Chiang, in the true Democratic spirit, has promised repeatedly—his entire Kuomintang movement has pledged—an election as soon as the Communists lay down their arms or genuine collaboration by the Communists justifies. He is an avowed disciple of Christian principles.

Stalin's Tool in Asia

The Communists, atheistic or agnostic disbelievers in Christian principles, only pretend to advocate democracy. They represent Stalin's bid to capture Asia—in absentia.

The only choice for us in Asia is between those two alternatives. All other argument is immaterial. I could report as bad things about the Kuomintang regime as the Communists are reporting to us now. It is corrupt in many spots; in others it is not good government.

China is suffering inflation, which the Kuomingtang has not combatted. It will have a terrific struggle to survive not only the Communist opposition, but itself. As I reported before, I have authoritative information 98 per cent of the struggling Chinese people are not much interested in either government.

The Kuomingtang government, however, is our ally, was a participant with us in setting up the United Nations war and peace organization. It cooperates with us wholeheartedly. The Communist government may or not have a unique degree of independence from Moscow, but it would vote today with Russia against us on any matter of war or peace; in fact, it is in armed rebellion against our ally.

Put this basic background thought to any China news dispatch you read from now on, whether it comes straight from the Communists or circuitously through American or other spokesmen—and laugh at them.

Atomics a Job for Science

By Walter Lippmann

IN THE THREE MONTHS since the atomic bombs were dropped on Japan, American scientists have already done an inestimable service. They have provided the knowledge which enables us to define the problem, and therefore to see, not the full ready-made solution to be sure, but where to look for it.

Everyone who has followed the discussion now knows that it is impossible for this government to keep the secret of the atomic bomb. That much no serious person any longer denies: no one pretends that we have more than a head start in the production of atomic bombs.

But this discussion carries with it as its corollary another, which is equally significant though it has not received the same attention. If one, two, or three governments cannot keep "the secret," then five governments, separately or as the security council, are also unable to keep the secret. We are dealing, in other words, with a large body of developing scientific knowledge and its application in untold ways to countless unpredictable ends.

Any public policy is bound to be falsely conceived if it rests on the notion that any government, or a league of governments, or even a world government, can prevent some scientists from discovering anything which other scientists have already found out. If in a field of knowledge like this one, public men, who are as a matter of course ignorant, attempt to outwit men of science they are certain to fail.

Impossible To Govern

The true conclusion and the major premise of all public policy is, I submit, that governments cannot govern the development of the science and technology of atomic energy. That belongs to the men of science and the engineers. What governments can do, and must do, is to form public policies which are favorable to and consistent with the civilized use of atomic energy.

What, then, are we to think of Prime Minister Attlee's proposal to share our knowledge of atomic energy with the members of the security council. We shall think all the better of it, I believe, the more clearly we have grasped the idea, and its implications, that the development of atomic energy cannot be governed by governments.

Suppose it is agreed in principle that Britain, Canada, and the United States will share the secret with the Soviet Union, France, and China. How in fact do we go about sharing it? Not, as might at first be supposed, by calling a meeting of the security council at which Mr. Byrnes takes a sealed envelope out of his pocket, opens it and hands carbon copies of the great secret to Mr. Molotov, Mr. Bidault, and Mr. T. V. Soong. For Mr. Byrnes, not being a nuclear physicist, would have only the dimmest idea of what he was divulging, and Messrs. Molotov, Bidault, and Soong would be quite incapable of guessing the "secret" which had been "shared" with them. It would be largely gibberish to all the members of the security council.

The fact of the matter is that if Mr. Byrnes had such a memorandum, it would have been written for him by Dr. Bush and his associates, and the only Russians, Frenchmen, and Chinese who could make head or tail out of it would be a certain number of scientists who are already advanced students in the field of atomic science.

What, therefore, would happen at the meeting of the security council when the secret was being shared? Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Molotov would be bound to discuss, not the secret of atomic energy, but how Russian scientists, French, Chinese, are to share the secret.

The primary political question would, therefore, be not how a few governments are to share this secret but how the scientists are to share it. They are the only people who can share it because they are the only people capable of understanding it.

If tomorrow morning Scientists Bush, Conant, Urey, Oppenheimer, along with Einstein, Bohr, Fermi, offered to share the secret with me, I could no more take advantage of their kind of offer than I could become an opera singer by having a good, long, hush-hush and heart-to-heart talk with Lily Pons.

Only Possible Meaning

When we talk of sharing this secret with the security council, this can mean only that we shall propose agreements and arrangements by which all men who work in the general field of atomic science are enabled to share their knowledge, past, present, and future. I say all men because it is absurd to suppose that this knowledge can be shared by scientists who happen to be citizens of five states and not shared with Bohr of Denmark, who knows all about it already, or with the physicists of Oslo, Stockholm, Prague, Milan, Turin, Rome, Vatican City, Buenos Aires, Calcutta, Bombay and every other place where men are working in scientific research.

The only thing governments can do with this secret is to do with good grace, and in the general interest of mankind, what is going to happen to the secret anyway. That is to make this knowledge universal, and to diffuse it as widely as possible.

This will make the community of scientists the guardians of mankind against the pernicious use of this knowledge. No one else can be the guardians. For they, alone, and not statesmen, soldiers, officials and journalists, can possibly know enough about the whole subject to detect, to intercept, to surmise, whether any government is attempting to make a sinister and secret use of atomic energy.

Inevitable Results

To share this knowledge with the world scientists of the world would mean, not that our government handed over the secret to other governments and then all the governments retired into secrecy again. It would mean that all the leading men of science in the field would have to meet and meet regularly, and to come to know each other, and to correspond, and to visit one another and exchange publications.

Under these conditions it would still be possible, of course, but it would be difficult, for the conspicuous men in this field to lie to one another, or go into hiding, or lead a double life. But if among them there were criminals who meant to fool their colleagues, they could certainly fool the amateurs and ignoramuses much more easily.

This is not the end, but it is the beginning, of public policy. On this foundation, and on no other, it seems to me, can an international policy be formed which may bring the governments, which might exploit atomic energy malevolently, under a regime of law that mankind will have reason to believe in. That will be a long and difficult labor. It will be quite impossible if, misunderstanding the nature of scientific research, we precipitate, or permit a race of armaments to develop.

WORKING IN THE SHADOWS

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday, Nov. 13, 1935.

The Ohio supreme court named Fred W. Warner, Marion attorney, to membership on the state bar examination committee. He was to serve the unexpired term of the late William J. Meyer of Portsmouth to end March 1, 1936, and then begin a five-year term to end March 1, 1941.

Four "buddies," three of whom had not seen the fourth since the close of World War I, held a post-Armistice day reunion here. They were Ralph Fox of Woodsfield, O., Fred P. Haas of Forest Lawn boulevard, Clyde H. Hosey of 937 North Main street and George Court of Owens station. All saw overseas service in Co. C, 54th Infantry, 6th Division, U. S. Army for 11 months and four days.

Approximately 3,600 eggs were broken on Route 95, 10 miles east of Marion, when a truck owned and driven by Harry Sugaski of Wellington skidded on the wet pavement and was ditched at 1 a. m.

Frank J. Navin, 64, owner of the world champion Detroit Tiger baseball team, died within an hour after he fell from a horse at the Detroit Riding and Hunt Club in Detroit.

William B. Stalter, 79, native of Wyandot county, died at his home at 234 West Church street.

A "football" dance was held by the Nine to Twelve Dance club in the Elk's hall with more than 40 couples in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Myers were chairmen of the committee and assisting were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bachelder, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. James Parker.

20 YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Nov. 13, 1925.

Mayor-Elect Earl Hazen appointed William B. Strayer as Marion's new safety director to succeed James H. Eymon. Harry K. Stofer was appointed city clerk. The mayor-elect announced that Service Director O. A. Benedict would be retained during the next administration.

Edward D. Libbey, 65, founder of the Owens Bottle Co. and Toledo's leading philanthropist, died of pneumonia.

A daughter, Eleanor Jean, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence DeLong at their home west of Green Camp.

Mrs. Glenna Clevenger was hostess to the Art club at her home on South Vine street.

The Emma Berger Bible class of Calvary Evangelical Sunday school met at the home of Mrs. George Orians on North Seffner avenue. A report showed that the class had contributed $700 to the church building fund since June 1.

Repeal of Excess Profits Tax

By Raymond Moley

Complaints are made by labor and by buyers that something very much like a strike is going on among the manufacturers of cotton goods. Purchasing possibilities in many wholesale lines are fewer than at almost any time during the war. This means that consumers are greatly inconvenienced, that jobs are not being produced and that taxes cannot be collected on profits which are not made.

One reason for this is a continuing difference of opinion between manufacturers and the OPA about what constitutes costs and reasonable profits. But the major reason is the fact that, since Congress has decreed that the excess profits tax shall be removed on January 1st, the manufacturers are waiting for tha date to step up their business. For every dollar that they make before next year, Secretary Vinson will take 90 cents. Next year, he will take less. It is only human that a manufacturer who is sure of selling his commodities will hesitate to sell them now. He will withhold making them or store them for sale later. There is less necessity for ready money now, because manufacturers have plenty of wartime reserves.

If congress could comprehend this fact and set the date of the repeal of the excess profits tax at an earlier date, production and sales would immediately move ahead.

It is hard to see how such a change of date would injure anyone. In the business of merchandising clothing, a lost season is almost a net loss, for people simply make old clothes serve. Not much accumulation of demand takes place. A refusal to take profits now deprives the treasury of all taxes not only the excess profits tax. Increased production would produce more jobs, absorb purchasing power and make millions of consumers happy.

The problem is sharpened by the dearth of goods in prospect for Christmas trade. Dollars not spent between now and Christmas will merely pile up and add to inflation perils in other lines later.

We are a nation with depleted wardrobes, with plenty of money, with ample labor in the clothing trades, with few problems of conversion in cotton manufacturing. No real labor difficulty is in the way. Congress is the only impediment.

Here is a Christmas gift which takes from no one and will make everybody better off. Let's have some action.

Final Report

In his final report to Ohio voters on his activities as a United States senator, Harold H. Burton, appointed to a vacancy on the Supreme Court Sept. 17, presented a table showing how his time had been spent in Congress since Jan. 3, 1941, when he began his first term in the Senate.

During that time there were 731 sessions of the Senate, and he attended 625 of them. Out of 1,354 quorum calls, Mr. Burton answered present at 1,202. He voted on 430 out of 492 contested roll calls and made his position known on important roll calls even when absent.

Committee meetings, the chief claims on a legislator's time, reached important totals in Mr. Burton's case. He attended 871 of these as a member of committees on appropriations, the judiciary, military affairs, commerce, the District of Columbia, immigration, civil service, pensions, the so-called Truman committee etc. Almost half of this total was piled up in 1944 and 1945, when Mr. Burton became one of the outstanding members of the Senate.

With the return of cellophane to the places, all the prewar problems it imposed will be back with us, worse than before.

When war began, we customers were beginning to get the hang of breaking into cellophane-wrapped articles, but we lost our skill during the wartime vacation when often there was neither the cellophane nor the articles.

To review what had been learned up to Pearl Harbor, the two best methods were fists and bayonets.

The discovery that cellophane would rank with historic discoveries like the use of tomatoes. A customer who wanted a dime into a package of cellophane-wrapped articles, and couldn't locate the tab supposed to business always could touch a match to the wrapping and get a toehold that way. But fellow had to be quick.

The fire attack worked better on non-flammable articles, such as bottles, hair of magnesia, fruit and candy. A child could learn it in a few easy lessons, to the consternation of fire underwriters and the local fire department.

The bayonet method was safer, but not every body carries a bayonet. Jack knives, letter openers, kitchen cutlery and scissors made good substitutes. The trick was to jab the cellophane with the slack and proceed from there, being careful not to jab too deep in the case of edibles, fragile and fragile wearing apparel.

There were times when neither a bayonet could be used and a customer had to trust to luck. This was a project for a morning or a dull Sunday afternoon. A cellophane-wrapped candy balls, for example, was good for an hour's worth of picking work.

The cellophane overlooked in the beginning inevitably found its way into the market, and thus we came to have cellophane-wrapped cigars along with cellophane-wrapped lamp shades and other brilliant achievements of modern science. All these things will soon be back in force.

We must not look upon them as a curse because that is what they are—the people problem that is a byproduct of progress. Like the automobile fatality rate and family quarrels over radio programs. Cellophane is one of the greatest inventions, which doesn't have anything to do with the fact it also is a pain in the neck when it must be picked out of one's teeth after a package that needs to be opened in.

Why the Steel Industry Cannot Pay Increased Wages Now

Steel Prices were frozen by OPA at Pre-War levels— Costs have Soared—Many steel products now sell at a loss— Answer to present wage demands depends on steel price policy of OPA

TODAY, because of government-controlled prices and high costs, many steel products are being sold at a loss. That is why the steel industry cannot now pay higher wages.

A demand for a general wage increase of $2 a day has been made by the United Steelworkers of America-CIO. In presenting this demand, Philip Murray served notice that this demand was not subject to "dickering or compromise." To enforce this demand, strike votes are being taken this month in the steel industry. Any general stoppage of steel production would be a calamitous blow to reconversion.

Increased wages cannot be paid out of thin air. Proceeds from sales of steel provide the only fund out of which wages can be paid. Today the ceiling prices imposed by OPA do not provide a sufficient return to pay current costs of steel operations, let alone any increase in wages.

Present OPA ceiling prices for steel products are generally less than steel prices in 1937. However, labor and other costs in the steel industry have gone up tremendously. These ever-mounting costs have squeezed out virtually all of the profit originally contained in pre-war steel prices.

Accordingly, today steel producers are entitled to substantial increases in these ceiling prices. Many months ago they asked OPA for such price relief. OPA has not acted.

Collective bargaining conferences between steel producers and the Union have already been held. Nothing can be accomplished toward negotiating any wage increase until OPA performs its statutory duty. Under act of Congress, steel producers are entitled to ceiling prices which yield on each product a profit equivalent to that of the base period, established by OPA as 1936-1939.

Wages in the steel industry do not need to be further advanced to keep pace with increases in the cost of living since January 1941. Increases in average straight time hourly earnings in the steel industry, (without overtime) between January 1941 and August 1945 rose 34 percent, or more than the advance during this same period in the U. S. Department of Labor index of the cost of living.

Today steel workers rank among the highest paid wage earners in American industry. In August, 1945, average straight time pay for steel workers was $1.15 an hour, without counting overtime pay. The end of the war has not eliminated all overtime in the steel industry, and a considerable period of time may elapse before the industry fully returns to a normal 40-hour work week.

Until OPA authorizes fair prices, nothing can be settled through collective bargaining.

Engineers of Marion Area Hear O.W.U. Expert on Atomic Bomb

"The explosion of 2.2 pounds of uranium is equivalent to approximately 20,000 tons of TNT," Dr. William A. Manuel, professor at Ohio Wesleyan university told the Marion chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers at their regular meeting in the Harding Hotel Monday night.

Dr. Manuel is well qualified to speak on the atomic bomb. Now a professor of chemistry at Ohio Wesleyan, he formerly was on the faculty of Northwestern university and Western State college of Colorado. He has worked as an industrial chemist and is the author of a textbook on chemistry.

GOULD DIES. Grandson of Jay Gould, financier and railroad executive, Kingdon Gould, 58, died in New York City. A member of one of America's wealthiest families, he lived in virtual retirement since he suffered a stroke in 1938. He had been a director of railroads and companies founded by his grandfather.

No Secret, He Says

In discussing the future of atomic energy and control of the atomic bomb, Dr. Manuel pointed out that there is no secret relative to the scientific knowledge and that this information is in the possession of al, the nations with any scientific background; also, that scientists from Germany, France, England, Italy, Denmark and the United States worked on the atomic bomb project. In many instances these men have returned to their homelands. He also pointed out that the element uranium is found in other countries and that these countries have the large business organizations and trained technical men necessary to develop the method of manufacture and assembly of the atomic bomb. Therefore, his conclusion was, the only solution to this problem is full international co-operation since it it impossible to keep the development a secret for any length of time.

Dr. Manuel stated that, in his opinion, atomic energy would be made available as a source of power, however, it is impossible to say just how soon. The speed of scientific development is constantly increasing and the speed with which atomic energy is made available will depend upon scientific "know how." He also pointed out that during the war our policy was to draft all scientific men in colleges without regard to their ability and therefore the United States has slipped behind other nations in this respect.

Russia Sitting Pretty

He stated that Russia and England had more scientists and engineers in training at the close of the war than at the start. It will take five to nine years for the United States to recoup this temporary loss of technical men and it is his opinion that the federal government should enact legislation to insure the proper training of all promising young men regardless of race, color or creed.

Seventy-nine members and guests attended from Marion, Morrow, Delaware and Union counties. The business meeting was in charge of the president, W. R. James of Delaware.

OPA CHIEF REJECTS HIGHER CAR PRICES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Bitterly denouncing "government by pressure," Price Administrator Chester Bowles told congress today he is rejecting demands of automobile dealers for higher retail prices on new cars.

Appearing before the house small business committee, the OPA cheif estimated members of congress have received more than 5,000 telegrams protesting OPA's auto price plans.

Bowles declared:

"This idea of 'government by pressure' is an ominous sign of our times. It is a threat to the democratic rights of all the inarticulate, silent, little people of America."

Bowles told the committee, in the presence of hundreds of auto dealeds, that under the OPA price schedules for new automobiles the dealers "are likely to have their best profit year in 1946."

He said OPA would announce the prices Thursday.

EISENHOWER BACK TO TESTIFY ON MERGER

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—General Dwight D. Eisenhower came back to Washington today to give congress his views on pending military legislation.

Eisenhower came to the capital after an all-day welcome in Boston yesterday.

A caution against too rapid return of American soldiers from Europe was left with the nation today by Eisenhower.

The general said he believed American soldiers "should be returned to their homes," but added "America's obligations to the world and ourselves should be fulfilled."

Speaking last night to 500 wildly enthusiastic persons at a state dinner, Eisenhower said:

"If disintegration of our forces goes too far, it will provide evidence to the German people that we are not equal to our task, and an enduring peace may disappear and the war may have been fought in vain."

NEW CLUE FADES OUT

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13—Hope that a new clue had been found which might lead to the whereabouts of three-year-old Dickie tum Suden, missing from his Downieville, Calif., home since Nov. 1, collapsed today after a police checkup. Mrs. Bertha Ledbetter, manager of a hotel near Van Nuys, had reported she had found a piece of child's underwear in an apartment just vacated by a couple. The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard tum Suden said police reported, the child had not worn the type of garment described.

A "Scratching" Dog Is in Torment

Thousands of dog owners have found this good way to keep their pets from constant scratching, biting, rubbing, and digging. Once a week give them a dose of Red Hunters Dog Powders. These powders usually help to bring prompt ease from an intense itching irritation that has centered in the nerve endings of the dog's skin. The urge to scratch abates—the dog is happier, more contented. No wonder a purchaser writes: "Red Hunters Dog Powders have given my dog great relief. Many thanks from 'Chink' and self." Why not try them on your own scratching dog. 25c at any good drug store, pet or sport shop. (Economy size box only $1.00).

U. S., BRITAIN UNITE IN PALESTINE PROBE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—President Truman announced today the United States has agreed to the establishment of a joint Anglo-American committee to examine the whole Palestine problem.

The British suggested the creation of the committee after Mr. Truman had proposed admission of an additional 100,000 Jews to Palestine. Mr. Truman previously had disclosed Prime Minister Attlee felt that figure was too high.

In London, foreign secretary Ernest Bevin also told commons of this nation's agreement to form the committee but expressed doubt that Palestine could make more than a contribution to solving the problem of Jewish migration from war-ravaged Europe.

President Truman's statement said the committee will examine political, economic and social conditions in Palestine as "they bear upon the problem of Jewish immigration; "examine the position of the Jews in European countries "where they have been the victims of Nazi and Fascist persecution;" hear the views of competent witnesses "and to consult representative Arabs and Jews;" and make recommendations to the governments to meet immediate needs either by remedial action in Europe or by providing facilities for Jewish immigration to countries outside of Europe.

More Brutalities Are Charged to Yamashita

By The Associated Press

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 13 -- The stream of prosecution witnesses reciting details of Japanese brutalities in the Philippine Islands under command of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita was interrupted briefly today as a 14 year old defense witness took the stand.

Bisumino Romero, grandson of Filipino General Artemio Ricarte who allegedly collaborated with the Japanese, told the court he had never been present when Ricarte and Yamashita had been together.

A protest over shooting of two American civilian internees at Los Banos prison camp as they returned with food they had foraged outside brought a reply from the guards' commandant that he had orders from "imperial headquarters in Manila to kill any one attempting to escape from the camp," the witnesses said.

STIMSON IS ILL

By The Associated Press

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Nov. 13—Henry L. Stimson, 77-year-old statesman who served in the cabinets of three presidents, has been confined for several weeks to his home at West Hills near here following a serious heart attack. His wife said last night her husband was stricken several weeks ago. She said his condition has "progressively improved".

Premier Attlee's Troubles Pile Up All Over Empire

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Troubles are buzzing about John Bull's ears so actively that it's given to wonder whether British Prime Minister Atlee—currently the honored guest of President Truman—didn't invite worry by breaking a mirror sometime after his new Socialist government came to power in September.

The boiling over of the Palestine problem, with its dangerous Jewish-Arab differences, has been followed by other embarrassing events. A couple of days ago Pandit Nehru, who next to Mahatma Gandhi is the most influential Hindu in all India, declared during a speech in Bombay that it was India's duty to revolt. Then yesterday along came Egyptian Prime Minister Nokrashi Pasha.

D. Mackenzie

with a demand for complete independence, including the withdrawal of British troops from his country.

Of course Nehru's advocacy of revolution to break away from England may be rather in the nature of an academic challenge which is calculated to force the political issue with the new British government for independence.

Still he is powerful, and he has been making strong speeches ever since last June when he was released from prison where he had been held with other Indian leaders as the result of the disorders following the failure of the Cripps mission which offered India dominion status in 1942. He has been supporting the Indonesian revolt against the Dutch, and recently tried to visit Java but was refused permission by the government of India.

Egypt Is Vital

Egypt of course is one of the vital bases for the protection of Britain's Mediterranean life-line through the Suez canal to India and the other British domains of the Far East. It also is the keystone of English strength in the Middle East.

Egypt nominally is independent, but actually is bound by treaty to give England special privileges, including the right to maintain a strong military establishment. Also the Sudan is under a joint British-Egyptian protectorate. These things are a thorn in the side of Egypt, which long has been trying to establish absolute sovereignty.

The Egyptian urge for a free hand has been particularly strong since the last war when the people were greatly influenced by President Woodrow Wilson's stand for self-determination. I did my first close-up of this situation on visiting Egypt in 1916, not long after England had established a protectorate over the country as a war measure.

Sultan Airs Views

I had a long audience with Sultan Husein Kamel, and found him exceedingly pro-American but rabidly anti-British. He said things to me about England which, had I repeated them, most certainly would have cost him his throne.

The sultan insisted that British officials kiss his hand on being received, a procedure which your columnist refused to follow, although I did bow low and did back some seventy-five feet in withdrawing from his presence in the great audience room. You achieve this by maneuvering like an old side-wheel steamer getting in and out of its berth—a sort of side-and-a-half movement.

The protectorate was abolished in 1922, but treaty rights have maintained Britain's special privileges. The Egyptian demand is something which won't be settled easily.

Crowded Marseille Crime on Increase

By The United Press

MARSEILLE—American military courts of the Delta Base Section, of which Marseille is headquarters, have issued 9,893 sentences since November of last year.

According to authorities, only 70 of this number were for acts against the French.

Marseille, which has always had a reputation for being a tough town, is now one big headache for both Americans and French. With thousands of Yanks awaiting repatriation and regiments of Arab Soldiers who are stranded in France due to the shipping shortage, a black market flourishes and holdups and other crimes of violence are higher than ever in the city's history.

CONGRESSMAN DIES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Rep. James W. Mott (R-Ore.), a member of congress since 1933, died yesterday of a heart attack on his 62nd birthday. On Thursday he underwent an operation for relief of an intestinal obstruction. The house political lineup now is 241 Democrats, 188 Republicans, two members of other parties and four vacancies.

LAY-OFFS DECLINE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—The Bureau of Labor Statistics, reporting today 1,400,000 workers were laid off in September, said the number was 1,000,000 less than in August and that hiring had turned upward.

ROSENMAN TO RETIRE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13—Judge Samuel I. Rosenman will retire at the end of the year as special counsel to the President, the White House announced today. Presidential Secretary William D. Hassett told, a news conference Rosenman had served President Truman and former President Franklin D. Roosevelt at a "tremendous personal sacrifice."

Kramer denied he had been held "incommunicado."

U. S. DENIES PLAN TO HELP CHINA IN WAR

By The Associated Press

CHUNGKING, Nov. 13—American officials denied today, amid increased reports of civil war, that the United States had gone beyond war-time commitments in military assistance to China.

An American embassy spokesman termed completely unfounded a Communist published report that China would get a $64,000,000 loan for purchase of munitions from the United States.

Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer said the United States would keep its war-time contract to equip 39 Chinese divisions but denied Communist reports that 70 divisions would be supplied by the United States.

In Washington, Secretary of War Patterson said "there is no danger of our troops becoming involved in civil war in China unless they are attacked."

Americans in China, Patterson stated, are concerned entirely with disarmament and repatriation of Japanese troops and when that is concluded will turn over their occupied areas to government forces.

Serious fighting was reported in interior Manchuria with a greater battle building up along the North China-Manchu border.

TRUMAN ASKS FUNDS FOR FOREIGN RELIEF

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov.13 —President Truman asked congress today to authorize a new appropriation of $1,350,000,000 to help carry forward in Europe and in Asia the words of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

This would match an original authorization by congress on March 28, 1944. Of the original authorization, $350,000,000 remains to be appropriated. The house has approved the sum but senate action is pending.

In approving the $550,000,000 fund bill, the house hitched on a proviso denying any part of the money to nations which do not give American newsmen free access to news of UNRRA activities.

The President said current UNRRA funds will be exhausted by the end of this year and the "flow of supplies purchased with these funds can not last beyond early spring."

16-Year-Old Boy's Charm for Wives Leads Him to Prison

By The Associated Press

OROVILLE, Calif., Nov. 13 — Sixteen-year-old Ellsworth "What A Man" Wisecarver, the boy with an apparently irresistible fascination for married women, sulked in his jail cell today awaiting the arrival of another woman—his mother.

In the same jail, Mrs. Eleanor Deveny, 25, Los Angeles, mother of two children, declared she would divorce her soldier husband, now in Japan, and marry Ellsworth if he "still wants me."

"I thought I was happy with my husband as any one could be. Then I met Sonny," she signed. * * * "He made love to me from the start — and I couldn't resist him.

"I knew how old he was, but it didn't make any difference."

When Sonny was 14, he eloped with Mrs. Elaine Ludlum Monfredi, 22, another mother of two children. They were married, but at the request of Sonny's mother, police interrupted the couple as they honeymooned and the marriage was annulled.

Last Wednesday, Mrs. Deveny told the deputies, she eloped with Sonny, whom she had known two and a half weeks.

The romance was interrupted, police said, at the request of Mrs. Deveny's father.

EXPERT WORKING ON JAPAN'S BILL TO U. S.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Nov. 13 — President Truman's reparations representative, Edwin S. Pauley, reached Tokyo tonight and announced "I want a couple of days to size up the situation before making any definite statements" about the reparations bill defeated Japan will be asked to pay.

Indicating smoothness of his occupation program, General MacArthur today announced consolidation of his two armies in Japan into one force under Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger.

The Sixth army, presently under command of Gen. Walter P. Krueger with headquarters at Kyoto, will be de-activated Jan. 26 and its personnel not eligible to return home will be transferred to Eichelberger's Eighth army command.

January 26 is the birthday of both MacArthur and Krueger and is the third anniversary of the Sixth army's formation.

Krueger may retire.

By March, headquarters said, the only combat divisions left in Japan would be the 11th Airborne, 24th and 25th Infantry and the First cavalry. With headquarters special personnel and air force units, they would bring the entire spring occupation forces for Korea and Japan to about 200,000.

Galion Rotary Club Hears Akron Report

Special to The Star

GALION, Nov. 13—Roger Godfrey told his fellow Rotarians Monday night at Hotel Talbott about the Akron Rotary club meeting last Tuesday when he heard Tom Warren of England, president of Rotary International, as guest speaker.

For the meeting of the Galion Rotary club, W. L. Swick gave preliminary remarks about his talk on the constitution which he will present at a later meeting. A report of the recent Institute of International Understanding which was sponsored by the local club, was given by Russell Post. William Auld told the club about the organizational work of the Alcoholics Anonymous in Marion.

By The Associated Press

Quiet prevailed along the nation's labor front today although threats of strikes in major industries remained.

The number of workers idle across the country because of work stoppages remained at around 272,000.

Efforts to settle the country's largest single strike, involving some 60,000 AFL lumber workers in the Pacific northwest, have stalled, said a union spokesman in Portland, Ore.

There were no indications the strike of AFL-CIO machinists in the San Francisco bay area for 30 per cent wage increases was nearing an end.

The CIO-United Automobile Workers has delegated to a committee authority to call a strike against the motor industry's "big three" at any time it sees fit. Employes of General Motors, Chrysler and Ford have voted in favor of a work stoppage to gain their demands for a 30 per cent wage rate boost.

It was not known whether the United States Steel Corp., will accept Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach's invitation to resume wage negotiations tomorrow with the CIO United Steelworkers.

HIGH-POINTERS ALERTED

By The Associated Press

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 13—All 70-point veterans and nearly all 60-point men of the U. S. Eighth army in Japan will be enroute home by Dec. 1, Lt. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, Eighth army commander, estimated today.

Art Hobby Starts New Industry for Three Marion Residents

BY MARY HERRING

A mutual interest in art which resulted in a partnership formed more than a year ago between Mr and Mrs William Lobenwein of 883 Bellefontaine avenue and Dominic Sansotta of 662 Davids street has progressed so much in the last 5 months that the work which started out as a hobby has now become a paying industry.

The two men met shortly after Mr. Lobenwein came to Marion as manager of the Color Center Paint store at 136 South Main street Mr Sansotta became acquainted when he entered the store for art supplies He had heard of the manager's work as interior decorator in Springfield, O before his appointment here They both were interested in art work and that interest became the basis of experiments in wall plaques and figurines

The first designs for the new wall plaques were started in July of this year At that time they were made simply as a hobby in which the two men were keenly interested and because they felt that as a rule the plaques then on the market followed a rather set pattern The partners said their designs are original and have been patented or have a patent pending under their trade name Marion-Art Products

Schooled in Art

Mrs Lobenwein assists the two in the work Her husband is a graduate of the Art Institute of Nuernberg, Germany and Mr Sansotta attended art school in New Castle, Pa Both of the Lobenweins were born in the old country. Mr Lobenwein came to America in 1923 a year after he was graduated from the institute Here he met and married his wife and the two received their citizenship papers in 1939

The original model of their products are designed in clay and perfected before rubber moulds are cast. This latter mould is made in such a way for figurines that the finished product shows no line where the mould joins The moulds for the plaques are of course flat After the rubber mould is finished, the plaster for the finished product is poured When the material is hard the rubber slips from the plaque or figurine with ease The painting comes next and this work is done entirely by hand Some of the wall plaques, shoped like a basket, are given an antique finish Most of the plaques which are now made in approximately 30 designs are in colors.

Colors Subject To Change

These colors are changed from time to time as the men think necessary for improvement of the product. The majority of the wall plaques are small. However, there is one large Madona design which is proving quite popular.

The local products were offered for sale when a salesman for another concern came to place some plaques in the paint store for display Mr Lobenwein remarked that he and his partner made better looking ones than the sample the salesman was holding When the salesman asked to see some of their work Mr Lobenwein showed the designs which the two men had perfected up to that time The salesman asked for the chance to sell them.

Since that time, Mr and Mrs Lobenwein and Mr Sansotta have had more orders than they can fill Due to the shortage of help and the fact that the plaques and figurines must be made during spare time only, they are greatly handicapped in meeting orders

During the last two months, when actual shipment of the products started, more than 1,000 have been shipped to various parts of the United States and orders are still piling up which they are unable to meet because of the limited time they can work and the lack of outside help

In addition to the work at the store and the manufacture of the plaques Mr and Mrs Lobenwein are moderately active in church affairs at the Emanuel Lutheran church Mr Sansotta is employed as a draftsman in the Marion County Engineer's office.

Will the Atom Bomb Destroy the World?

"It must be of the spirit if we are to save the flesh" So declares one of the greatest of our wartime leaders. Mankind can save itself now only by a spiritual regeneration. Can the world do it?

Thirty-four years ago, in Forbidden Tibet, behind the highest mountains in the world, a young Englishman named Edwin J. Dingle found the answer to this question. A great mystic opened his eyes. A great change came over him. He realized the strange Power that Knowledge gives.

That Power, he says, can transform the life of anyone. Questions, whatever they are, can be answered. The problems of health, death, poverty and wrong, can be solved. So, also, can be the problems of world peace.

In his own case, he was brought back to splendid health. He acquired wealth, too, as well as world-wide professional recognition. Thirty-four years ago, he was sick as a man could be and live Once his coffin was bought. Years of almost continuous tropical fevers, broken bones, near blindness, privation and danger had made a human wreck of him, physically and mentally.

He was about to be sent back to England to die, when a strange message came—"They are waiting for you in Tibet." He wants to tell the whole world what he learned there, under the guidance of the greatest mystic he ever encountered during his twenty-one years in the Far East. He wants everyone to experience the greater health and the Power, which there came to him.

Within ten years, he was able to retire to this country with a fortune. He had been honored by fellowships in the World's leading geographical societies, for his work as a geographer. And today, 34 years later, he is still so athletic, capable of so much work, so young in appearance, it is hard to believe he has lived so long.

As a first step in their progress toward the Power that Knowledge gives, Mr. Dingle wants to send to readers of this paper a 9,000-word treatise. He offers to send it, free of cost or obligation, to readers of this article. For your free copy, address The Institute of Mental-physics, 213 South Hobart Blvd., Dept. U325, Los Angeles 4, Calif. Readers are urged to write promptly, as only a limited number of the free books have been printed.—Adv.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Innards
WHEN CONSTIPATION makes you feel punk on the dickens, brings on stomach upset, sour taste, gassy distress, take Dr Caldwell's famous medicine to quickly pull the trigger on lazy "innards" and help you feel bright and chipper again.
DR. CALDWELL'S is the wonderful senna laxative combined in good old Syrup Pepsin to make it so easy to take.
MANY DOCTORS use senna preparations in prescriptions to make the medicine more palatable and agreeable to take. So be sure your laxative is contained in Syrup Pepsin.
INSIST ON DR. CALDWELL'S—the favorite of millions for 30 years, and feel that wholesome relief from constipation Even finicky children love it.
CAUTION: Use only as directed.
